

Nimitz and Spaatz Disagree on Plan For Chiefs of Staff

Former Wants 3-Man Control, Latter 1 Head

Washington—P—Senators got sharply conflicting recommendations today from two former military leaders on the question of providing for a single chief of staff to head the nation's military organizations.

Gen. Carl Spaatz, air force head in 1947-48, urged "a single chief of staff for the secretary of defense instead of the committee system we have now."

Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz, chief of naval operations in 1945-47, said it would be "totally wrong" to set up a single chief of staff in place of the present joint staffs.

The retired military leaders gave their views in public testimony at the senate missile-satellite inquiry.

On one thing they were agreed — that there are now far too many assistant secretaries around the defense department. Most of these offices were created by congress on recommendation of former Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson.

Nimitz said it would "speed up business" if the assistant secretary of defense were removed from "the chain of administrative control" and the decision-making power left directly in the hands of the secretary.

On the same sort of argument, Nimitz proposed abolishing the present separate post of chairman of the joint chiefs of staff.

Nimitz told the senators he had once favored the idea of a single chief of staff when, as a Pacific commander during World War II, he felt frustrated by delays in Washington decisions. But he said he is now convinced "I was wrong," and that a single chief would be a mistake.

On the other hand, Spaatz argued a single chief is needed in an age when missiles and space ships are soon to be had and even conventional weapons are growing more complex.

As Nimitz was testifying, the house appropriations committee voted an emergency $1,410,000, 000 fund for defense. The money would go for missile programs, for a start on three atomic submarines, and for strengthening the air force.

Not Ultimate Weapon

At the same time, the house armed services committee was continuing its separate inquiry aimed like the senate subcommittee's at finding ways to strengthen the defense set up. The house group called Secretary of the Army Brucker and Gen. Lyman Lemnitzer, acting army chief of staff, for closed door questioning.

Brucker had a statement, given to newsmen, which said that "the army has never subscribed to the theory that the ICBM (inter-continental ballistic missile) is the ultimate weapon."

SEC Rules It Cannot Control Trading Stamps

Washington—P—Trading stamps are no more "securities" than are street car tokens or box tops, the securities and exchange commission ruled today, and therefore are not subject to SEC regulation.

The commission rejected a petition of the Food Industry Alliance that SEC consider trading stamps to be securities like stocks or bonds and bring them under the registration rules which govern stock issues.

The largest stamp company, Sperry and Hutchinson, contested the proposal and won a favorable ruling from SEC's general counsel.

3-Month Highway Jobs To Total $10,943,500

Madison—P—The state highway commission reported to Gov. Thomson today it planned to start highway jobs totaling $10,943,500 in the first three months of 1958.

The commission will open bids for $4,325,800 in jobs on Jan. 28, $2,484,000 on Feb. 28 and $4,106,000 on March 11.

The commission report added that $95,108,300 worth of road work was undertaken in 1957 out of $111,885,000 worth of projects announced. About 15 per cent of the planned work was deferred.

Woman Doctor Credited With Saving 6 Lives

3 Adults, 3 Children Overcome by Gas in Rhinelander Resort

Rhinelander—P—The timely arrival of a woman physician was credited with saving the lives of three adults and three children overcome by gas fumes early today in the lodge at Sandy Point resort just outside of city limits.

A partly clogged chimney which did not properly vent a gas furnace was blamed by the gas company for the mishap.

Seven persons were hospitalized, including a policeman who carried out one of the victims, but all were reported in satisfactory condition today. And the woman physician, Dr. Frances Kline, also became ill but refused hospitalization.

The incident occurred at the resort operated by G. D. Gunkel, who was in Land o' Lakes on business and remained there overnight.

Phones to Doctor

Mrs. Gunkel, 43, her three children, William, 14; Patrick, 10, and Mary, 5, all were overcome, as were their neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Mlle Howard, aged 61 and 49, respectively, and Policeman Eugene Krouze, 30, of the Rhinelander department.

Mrs. Gunkel called Dr. Cline at 12:30 a.m. to report that she was ill and needed help. Dr. Cline telephoned the Howards, who live near the lodge, and asked Mrs. Howard to stay with Mrs. Gunkel.

Mrs. Howard became ill and called her husband. They telephoned the physician. Mrs. Howard fainted while talking to Dr. Cline and her husband, also affected by the fumes, could not tell the doctor what had happened.

Dr. Cline went to the Gunkel home and found the three semi-conscious adults. She opened doors and windows and called the sheriff's office and police department. Two policemen and two city firemen went to the home and carried the victims out of doors.

Krouze, who had gone into the basement and rescued Patrick, 10, became ill at the hospital.

11 Hungarians to Stay in Britain

London—P—Britain today granted asylum to 11 homeless Hungarians who sneaked into this country as stowaways after going to Brazil as refugees.

The decision was announced in the house of commons by acting Prime Minister Richard A. Butler.

The government last week ordered the Hungarians sent back to Brazil, but relented after protests in newspapers.

The Hungarians — three married couples and five children — fled their own country during the anti-communist revolution.

They arrived in Britain two weeks ago as stowaways aboard the liner Highland Monarch saying they did not like life in South America.

Ike Stresses U.S. Might And Says It Will Grow

Tells Republicans Security Must Not Become Issue in 1958 Congress Contests

Chicago—P—President Eisenhower says America is strong militarily "and will grow ever stronger" — and that national security must be barred as a political issue in this year's congressional election campaigns.

The president also told a Republican $100-a-plate dinner rally and a nationwide television-radio audience last night that United States defense is markedly stronger than when he took office five years ago.

Eisenhower again pledged effective modernization of the defense setup to deal more adequately with the Russian threat in the future. And he told applauding party faithful here that in the modernization program "I intend to participate personally until the job is done."

The president, with Mrs. Eisenhower at his side, spoke for 15 minutes before about 5,000 enthusiastic diners at Chicago's International Amphitheatre at the start of his sixth year as chief executive. His talk — carried by TV and radio to more than 40 other party fund-raising dinners around the country — kicked off the 1958 drive to capture control of congress from the Democrats.

Near the outset of his address the president said the Republican's first objective — security — and a just peace — is not a partisan or political matter. Then he added:

"Americans must never and will never let the issue of security and peace become a pawn in anyone's political chess game."

Security Threat Seen

Some Democrats — and some Republicans — have contended in this election year and in this dawning space era that U. S. security is being imperiled.

Departing from his text at one point, the president hit at pessimists. He gave Republicans, independents and those he termed "discerning" Democrats this advice:

"Don't pay any attention to the pessimists, those people who for reasons of their own contend that America is fearful, America is weak."

"Let us throw back our shoulders and stand proudly and erectly. Let us throw out our chains and say: America is strong and will grow ever stronger as long as there is any danger of attack upon us or our allies."

"America has never been examined by the microscope of the condemning private property for man good. America does not highway purposes to see if any want war — It wants only peace, property owners suffer losses or just and secure and lasting enjoy windfall profits."

The governor said at the 45th annual convention of the Wisconsin Highway Conference, he drew in the field of property to be strength, her faith are dedicated to this single, over-riding problem is becoming more serious with the accelerated highway building program.

Russia Warns Mideast Against American Bases

Moscow—P—The Soviet Union warned the nations of the Middle East tonight that U.S. plans to establish nuclear and rocket bases on their territory are a threat to their existence and "an insult to the religious feelings of the Moslem people."

The Soviet foreign ministry called a special news conference to denounce the Baghdad pact prior to the scheduled opening of the Baghdad pact conference in Ankara Monday.

Foreign Ministry Spokesman Leonid Ilyichev took the occasion also to warn the United States and other members of the Baghdad pact that they would have to "take full responsibility for all the consequences" of their Middle East policies.

He singled out Turkey for taking "an especially aggressive stand" against the Soviet Union at the recent NATO summit conference in Paris.

Newsman Peek at Plant Producing 'Brains' to Steer U. S. Missiles

BY VICTOR I. MINAHAN, JR.
Editor of the Post-Crescent

Oak Creek, Wis. — In a farmer's field in this Milwaukee suburb the Age of Space has come to Wisconsin.

Here the AC Spark Plug division of the General Motors corporation has opened a huge, startlingly modernistic plant which is producing guidance systems for missiles — the fantastically accurate "brains" that steer such missiles as Thor and Matador.

In addition to giving Wisconsin a part in the nation's vision of space exploration, the plant stands as a vote of confidence by G. M. in Wisconsin as a site for an important new industrial activity.

As newsmen were taken on a tour of the plant Monday, AC officials found it difficult to translate into layman's language the kind of work done here. Such phrases as "aligned to within 50 millionths of an inch" become meaningless after a while. At one point the plant manager used this example: "This system must be so accurate that it would measure the movement of a wheel turning at the rate of one revolution every 14 years."

The one-story plant has 350,000 square feet of working and

11 White Men Go to Trial on Charges of Beating Negro Farmer

Greenville, S.C. — Eleven white men some of them admitted Ku Klux Klansmen, came to trial today, charged in the flogging of a Negro farmer six months ago.

Solicitor (Prosecutor) James R. Mann said he planned to call the case as soon as Greenville general sessions court opened.

With Judge James M. Brailsford presiding, the trial opened today.

The Cruells have owned their 100-acre farm near Travelers Rest, about 10 miles north of here, for about 25 years. The white neighbor Sherwood Turley, a 34-year-old partly disabled farm hand, rented a house on the farm.

with his wife, who was confined because of kidney trouble. Mrs. Cruell said, "When I turned around, I saw the house full of white men, hollering and talking about us trying to mix with the white people and keep the white children. They didn't like it because we own all this land."

Democrats Chop at Ike's Assertion Of Greater U.S. National Security

Defense Matters Receive Attention From Republican Leaders During Series of Fund Raising Rallies

Washington — P— Top senate Democrats challenged today the United States well ahead of President Eisenhower's contention that the nation's security has been "markedly strengthened" during his five years in office.

The Democrats also struck back at the assertion by Sherman Adams, chief presidential assistant, that their party has been "politicizing with national defense."

Defense matters received major attention as Eisenhower, Adams and other administration officials addressed a series of Republican rallies throughout the nation last night. Eisenhower's speech in Chicago was part of a half-hour program carried by radio and television on a national network.

Part of Story
Chairman Russell (D-Ga.) of the senate armed services committee said Eisenhower told only part of the story in claiming that the nation's defenses have been bolstered under Republican rule.

"Of course," Russell said, "we have got the B52 bomber and the B58 on its way during the period in which Eisenhower has been president. We have strengthened ourselves, but all defense is a relative matter."

"In the last five years the Russians have made much faster gains than we have. We have definitely lost ground in relative strength in those five years and we must get on about the business of making it up."

Less Secure
Sen. Kefauver (D-Tenn.), a member of the preparedness subcommittee investigating the missile and satellite programs, said the Eisenhower administration has "failed in its imperative responsibility" to keep

Nixon Advises Against Cut In Foreign Aid

No Money Is Better Spent in These Times, Vice President Says

New York — P— Cutting millions of dollars from foreign aid now would mean spending billions for defense later, says Vice President Nixon.

The greatest threat to the free world, Nixon told a Republican dinner here last night, is nonmilitary aggression. For that reason, he added, this country must continue its program of foreign aid.

"No money we spend today is better spent," he asserted. The vice president departed from his text to emphasize a need for continuing foreign aid in one of 44 "salute to Republicans" dinners across the nation celebrating the fifth anniversary of President Eisenhower's first inaugural.

American Security
American security, he said, must be placed above all other considerations, including the budget. Nixon also warned that a "blank check to our defense establishment can lead only to rubber checks for the American people."

This country, to achieve and maintain military strength which would discourage communist aggression, he said, "must have defense forces based not on uniforms or weapons, but only on basic national needs; and roles and missions based not upon World War II doctrines, but upon the new dimensions of warfare created by the development of modern weapons."

He added that the United States must step up its military preparedness program to meet the threat of Russian advances, adding that "the president's program is designed to do that."

Irresponsible Talk
Nixon denounced "a lot of irresponsible talk that the United States is hopelessly behind" the Soviet Union in security needs. He said this country is "stronger than any potential enemy."

The vice president also called on Republicans to drop a "down-in-the-mouth, defeatist attitude" which he said many in his party have.

In urging the election next fall of a Republican congress, Nixon said the Republicans have a better record and a better program than the Democrats and that it is time for Republicans to start emphasizing "what is right" about the Eisenhower administration.

The administration, he said, has given the American people "the best government the nation has had in any 5-year period in history."

Chennault Says Airplanes Not Yet Obsolete

New York — P— Maj. Gen. Claire L. Chennault, World War II leader of the Flying Tigers, says it will be a long time before we have pushbutton warfare.

The retired air general stopping here on his way to Walter Reed Hospital, Washington, said yesterday that the airplane is not obsolete for war purposes.

He expressed concern over the amount of money being spent on satellite and missile programs, saying these programs should be carried on "clearly and calmly, with definite objectives in mind."

Chennault, 67, is suffering from lung cancer. Chennault was here also for a board meeting of the Civil Air Transport company, of which he is chairman. He remarked, wistfully, that he was born 50 years too soon to do what he would like to do — go to the moon in the first spaceship that gets there.

The Flying Tigers was an international band of airmen that flew for Nationalist China against Japan before the United States entered World War II.

Sheriff Orders KKK Leader to Give Up

Minister Charged With Inciting Riot Between Klansmen, Indians

Lumberton, N. C. — P— A South Carolina Ku Klux Klan leader was ordered to surrender today on a charge of inciting a riot between Klansmen and Indians.

Sheriff Malcolm McLeod said that if the Rev. James Cole, 33, of Marion, S.C., did not meet the deadline, he would begin legal proceedings for his arrest in South Carolina.

Cole describes himself as head of the Klan in both Carolina states.

A Robeson county grand jury — composed of three Indians, two Negroes and 13 white men — indicted Cole and Klansman James Garland Martin of Reidsville, N.C., yesterday on charges of inciting riot. In addition, the grand jury cited others of the KKK "unknown to the state."

Short-Lived Rally
The charge stemmed from the Klan's short-lived rally Saturday. It ended as several hundred Indians, firing shotguns and rifles, drove the Klansmen from the site near Maxton, 30 miles from here. Four persons suffered slight injuries as the Indians fired mostly into the air and into the ground. State troopers broke up the fracas.

After the grand jury action, Superior Court Judge Clawson L. Williams recommended a bond of $1,000 for Cole. Solicitor (prosecutor) E. Maurice Braswell immediately issued an arrest order.

Authorities already have custody of Martin, a 37-year-old tobacco plant worker. Officers found him in a ditch after the shooting and charged him with drunkenness and carrying concealed weapons. He will be tried on those charges at Maxton tomorrow by Judge Earl Bullard, an Indian.

Promise Protection
Sheriff McLeod talked with Cole by telephone last night and said the Free Will Baptist minister planned to confer with his lawyer before deciding whether to return voluntarily. The sheriff said Cole told him he had been warned that he would be killed if he returned, but the sheriff promised protection. Cole has a police record of 1945.

Khrushchev Assists Cupid — American's Bride Gets Visa

Moscow — P— Nikita Khrushchev has given another assist to Cupid.

The Soviet government today advised John Sandor, Pueblo, Colo., lawyer, that his Russian bride will be granted a visa to leave the Soviet Union.

Sandor who married Victoria Katsarova, a Moscow hotel receptionist, last November, was due to leave Soviet Russia alone next Friday when his visa expires. He appealed to Khrushchev, the Soviet party's first secretary, two weeks ago for a permit for his bride to accompany him.

A telephone call from the passport office today apparently cleared the way for a happy ending to the international romance. The passport office told Sandor his bride had received the permission and that she should call this afternoon to collect her visa.

The 42-year-old Sandor, a former navy fighter pilot, met Victoria when he came here in July, 1956, with a visiting group. He tried to return here that fall but ran into difficulties in getting a visa. Finally, after he wrote to Khrushchev, he got the visa — nearly a year after he first applied.

Got Marriage Papers
Again he ran into difficulties in getting marriage papers. Again he appealed to Khrushchev. The papers finally came through last Nov. 3 and he and Victoria rushed to the marriage bureau.

Then he met with more trouble in getting an exit visa for his wife to return to the states with him.

His own visa was extended for 2-week periods several times. The last time, when it was to expire on Jan. 10, it was extended on an appeal to Khrushchev.

Sandor said today he hoped the necessary formalities would be cleared in time to permit him and his bride to leave together on Friday. If not he said, he hoped to get his own visa extended another time so they could leave together.

Today's Peace Efforts Lead to War or Grandeur Humanity

BY ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

New York—Space is tomorrow's cradle of fantastic new human boons.

It can bring better forecasting or even control of weather, secrets of stars and moon and Mars, worldwide TV, totally unpredictable comforts and powers.

Or space is tomorrow's battleground of a savage, silent war—war between spaceships and rockets whirling at dizzy speeds. Silent war because space has no air to carry the sound of exploding bombs or guns.

This fateful decision underlies President Eisenhower's appeal to Soviet Premier Bulganin that nations dedicate space to peaceful uses.

Eminent scientists, American and Russian alike, predict men will fly in space, aboard space cruisers or platforms circling the earth.

What men do there can cast the die between peace or war. The potentials either way have been outlined by rocket and scientific experts.

Space platforms could be takeoff fields for rockets making discovery jaunts to sister planets or the real moon.

From the same platforms, rockets with H-bomb warheads could be shot down to hit any spot on earth with pinpoint accuracy.

Great telescopes aboard artificial satellites could gaze clearly vast distances into space. They would be free of the shimmering distortion in seeing caused by the earth's thick blanket of air.

They would see new great islands of stars, Mars' "canals" and their answer, perhaps see stars being born or solve puzzles of the universe. These and other instruments might discover new sources of energy.

Or the same telescopes could peer down on earth—sky—spies observing every troop or airplane or rocket movement of a potential enemy. A threatening move... and obliteration from space.

TV attachments could make the watching automatic, for continuous surveillance.

But TV eyes for peace could chart cloud movements around the world, detect the birth of hurricanes and storms, vastly improve weather forecasting to aid farmer, picnicker, ship and plane. The weather satellite could signal for early, effective action for still-promised techniques of seeding clouds to bring rain where needed, or divert storms to sea.

Mirror in Space

Man-made moons could serve as relay stations to bounce TV signals back for simultaneous reception around the world, to communicate voices or messages quickly, accurately, anywhere.

Germany's Prof. Hermann Oberth foresees a gigantic mirror "hung" in space, focusing the sun's rays, as by a magnifying glass, at any desired intensity and beam.

Sun rays could light entire cities safely by night. Sun heat rays could disperse killing frosts over orchards, melt Atlantic icebergs, open up ice-bound seaports, perhaps through heat affect cloud movements to affect weather.

Or, as a military weapon, the sun rays could set fire to whole cities and forests.

"From space, the masters of infinity could have the power to control the earth's weather, to cause drought and flood, to change the tides and raise the level of the sea, to divert the gulf stream, and change temperature climates to frigid," Sen. Lyndon Johnson (D-Texas) declared recently.

Sen. Johnson did not detail how this might be done. He spoke after hearing secret testimony given to the senate preparedness subcommittee.

Sputniks, and U.S. moons to come, are peaceful—enough messengers to learn what space is like. And whether and how it would be safe for human travel.

Next will come bigger satellites, carrying instruments, or men. Some nation will be first.

Mistrusting intentions, a rival might launch space war, sending up explosive rockets to tear the satellite to helpless bits. Conceivably, space war would find astronauts fighting to destroy enemy space vehicles and their crews.

Is the space above earth destined for peace or war?

The decision is political. There may well be only a few years left.

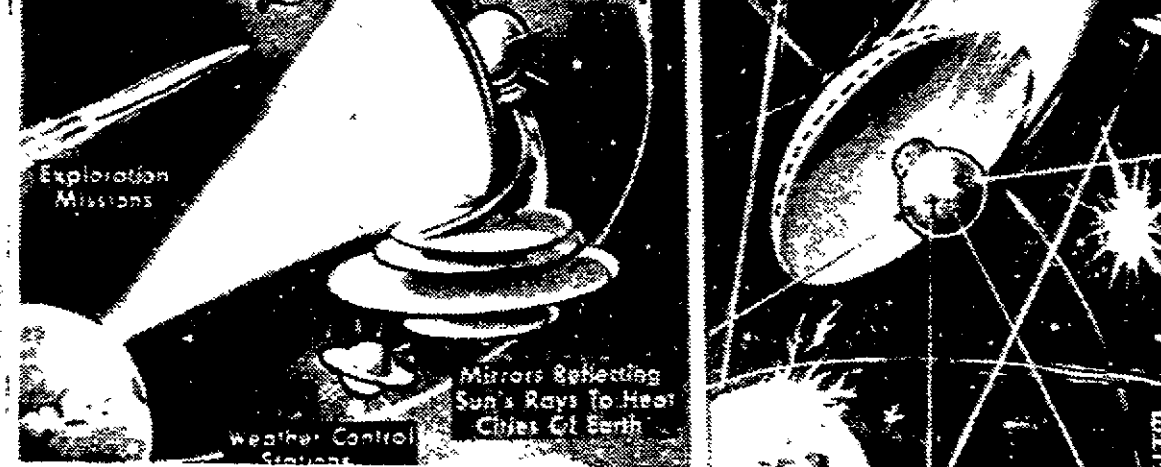

Newspaper Says Britain Wants Uranium, Fuel From United States

New York—The New York Times said Monday that Britain has turned to the United States for uranium fuel to use in future atomic power plants.

A Washington dispatch to the newspaper added that Atomic Energy commission officials disclosed that Britain has requested that the United States supply a substantial amount of slightly enriched uranium.

The story also said in part: While no final decision has been reached, it is expected that the British request will be fulfilled as part of a broader agreement for closer atomic cooperation between the nations.

In another area of atomic cooperation, commission sources predicted that official papers about to be released by the two nations will dispel the impression that Britain has scored a technological breakthrough in fusion research on controlling the thermonuclear reaction of the hydrogen bomb.

More Families On City Relief Than Year Ago

There were 15 more families and three more single people on city relief in December than in the same month a year ago, Relief Director F. A. W. Hammond reports.

Hammond says he carried 168 people in 34 family and 23 single cases during December at a total cost of $6,144.55.

This compares with 104 people in 19 family and 20 single cases at a cost of $3,582.20 during December, 1956.

Refunds from county and state relief appropriations will lower the December cost to $3,452.66 net to the city treasury, Hammond says.

Refunds in the same month the year before lowered the net cost to the city to $3,065.57.

A hike in unemployment, particularly in the construction field, caused the upswing, Hammond reports.

Few Will Pay Price of Peace, Pastor Contends

Need More Pioneers On Christian Frontier, Rev. Schlueter States

All mankind wants peace but few men are willing to pay its price, the Rev. F. E. Schlueter, pastor of Emmanuel Evangelical United Brethren church, contended in his Sunday morning sermon.

Christians are the folk who are ready and willing to help put the world back in joint, regardless of cost. In Jesus Christ they have found "who is the pioneer and perfecter of their faith" and who will lead them into a way of life that has for meaning and purpose with abiding satisfaction.

One "first" the Russians will never claim is the discovery of the spiritual and eternal life in an easy solution to the world's God, he asserted. But although problems nor does it possess the Russians may have done all the answers, but it is made away with God and all that goes up of responsible and devoted with religion, the power of religion still exists, the minister right answers and give their continued.

Right Relations The day is gone when man dissatisfied with family, country, government, institutions and everything in general, can go off and find some spot on earth where he can do as he pleases, the Rev. Mr. Schlueter said. And, if ever man hopes to establish right relations between individual and individual, Mr. Schlueter concluded.

groups and nations, he will have to become pioneers in the spirit of Jesus Christ, he stated. "Peace will not come merely by appropriating more money into a way of life that has for meaning and purpose with abiding satisfaction." One "first" the Russians will never claim is the discovery of the spiritual and eternal life in an easy solution to the world's God, he asserted. But although problems nor does it possess the Russians may have done all the answers, but it is made away with God and all that goes up of responsible and devoted with religion, the power of religion still exists, the minister right answers and give their continued.

kingdom may come on earth as it is in heaven. "This may seem foolishness and something and stumbling blocks go off and find some spot on earth where he can do as he pleases, the Rev. Mr. Schlueter said. And, if ever man hopes to establish right relations between individual and individual, Mr. Schlueter concluded.

High Cliff Park Completion Still Long Way Off

But 2 Temporary
Picnic Areas, Boat
Landing Set for '58

Although a completely developed High Cliff Forest park on the northeast shore of Lake Winnebago may be a long way off, temporary facilities already constructed are due for some active use next summer.

This idea was conveyed to members of the High Cliff Park association Monday night at the group's annual meeting as they listened to Clyde Smith, Campbellsport, conservation department field man, and Robert Espeseth, Madison, state park planning engineer.

Smith stated that 17,080 persons used the small picnic area on the lake shore in the two months it was open last year. The number was by actual count, which included 4,271 cars in the parking area during the same period.

Next summer, he said, a second picnic area will be ready for use south of the present picnic grounds. A temporary boat launching area also has been developed. Roads lead to the two picnic spots. Fireplaces will be put up and there will be 35 tables in each area.

Smith outlined the work accomplished on the state park special board session held after the organization's annual meeting in Wisconsin, stressing its long term, careful planning in relation to the development of the High Cliff park.

Report by Harbor Unit
S. F. Shattuck, Neenah, director and active worker of the association, presented a report of the harbor development committee, pointing up one of the major interests of the organization.

This committee favors building an all-weather boat harbor protected from the south and west by a breakwater. The suggested location is below the site of the former lime firm's crusher operation, where once stood the old landing stage for steamboats. Shattuck pointed out that a road already exists and the cliffs afford maximum protection from the north.

In an exploration of the east shore last week, he reported, the group took soundings through the ice and discovered soft brown mud instead of the rock they expected. About 35 feet down was a layer of gravel, he said. Dr. William Read, Lawrence college geologist, explained that a pre-glacial valley once ran along the base of the cliff and this probably had been filled with deposits of glacial clay and the gravel may represent the top of this fill, with the soft mud above more recent deposits from the lake.

Takes Time
Espeseth's talk centered on the reasons behind long-term planning for state parks and the meaning of field surveys, studies of land ownership, topographical surveys and land contour maps before the project reaches the specific use stage. Smith pointed out that even the short term work at High Cliff will take time, explaining that early facilities are stop-gap measures so limited areas can be used.

The clean-up work has only begun, he pointed out. Workers will continue filling in old building sites, put up more boundary line fencing. The department will continue its appraisal of land and obtain new options to increase the size of the park before any objective plans will be put on paper.

He will propose to the conservation commission that the area be made a wildlife refuge, closed to hunting and the use of firearms as a safety measure. Team honors went to Hennes and Mutchler with an 842 game and a 2,410 series. Gustman's owns about 328 acres, with 21 and Hennes and Mutchler are acres (including 100 feet of tied for the league lead with shoreline) in the process of being acquired. Appraisal has been made on other acreage being negotiated for purchase.

Adam C. Remley New President of Park Association

Adam C. Remley was elected president of the High Cliff Forest Park association Monday night at the special board session held after the organization's annual meeting at city hall. He succeeds George E. Johnson.

W. E. Schubert was elected vice president, replacing Remley. Re-elected were Erik Madisen, secretary, and Harold Adams, treasurer.

Two new directors named by the membership at the annual meeting were J. R. Gerrits, Kimberly, and James E. Bamberg, Kaukauna. Three directors re-elected were Remley, Schubert and Madisen.

Strontium Found In City Water

Kaukauna—Kaukauna is one of several eastern Wisconsin cities where natural strontium has been found in municipal waters, according to Dr. M. Starr Nichols and Dorothy R. McNail of the state laboratory of hygiene.

Reports received by William Ranquette, manager of the water department and Robert Vanevenhoven, assistant health officer, list 25.4 parts per million for 1957. The amount varies depending on the well from which the water was taken. Highest local amount reported was 33.6 parts per million from well six to 25.4 in well five, the most used well in the city.

Natural strontium is a metallic element which is chemically identical with radioactive strontium 90 found in atomic bomb fallout, but is not harmful unless associated with radioactivity.

The state lab checked 380 water supplies which showed 279 communities had less than one part per million while 101 ranged from one part per million at Luxemburg to 39.1 parts at Campbellsport.

Hockey Enjoys Comeback Fostered by Kimberly Man

Kimberly — Through the efforts of local businessmen and a Kimberly policeman, hockey is enjoying a rejuvenation here. The Kimberly Badgers, although they have no home rink of their own, are active in an Appleton league and play their games at the Jones park rink.

Don Schmeck, a member of the police department, is coach of the team and was largely instrumental in getting the sport started. He was successful in getting the recreation department to sponsor the team and also did a canvassing job of the business places to get donations for team shirts. Ray Hamann, principal of the Kimberly High school, is the team manager.

To show that the work spent with the team and getting organized has been worthwhile, the squad has a 3-1 record in its first loop games.

When Kimberly had its last hockey team is not certain, but it is a goodly number of years as far as anyone can recall. The only hockey activity in the past years has been between small groups of youngsters on a corner of a rink or on the road of one of the village's back streets.

The need for equipment is probably the major factor regarding the team at the present time. Many businessmen have contributed toward equipment for the squad but there is a necessity for quite a bit more. At the present time the shin guards used by the boys are leftovers from the baseball season. Although they do not give all the required protection, they serve the purpose. Some of the boys are not so fortunate to have these shin guards and stuff magazines inside their pants legs.

High Point Trophy
The team has a high point trophy that passes between players who score the most goals. Coach Schmeck made the trophy out of an old clamp skate and mounted it in a piece of mahogany. Schmeck says it really puts some go in the squad to see who is going to get the trophy.

The Kimberly team would have had a rink of their own at home this season had it not been for a water main break this winter. The street department had started flooding an area for a rink but the main break washed away some of the clay bank for the rink and water would not stay.

About 45 players responded to the initial call for team candidates. At the present time there are 20 men on the team and more are used when scrimmages are held in practice. With the interest shown by the players this year Schmeck hopes that the sport will expand in the village next year.

January 27 there will be special bowling for the drive at the Recreation bowling alleys.

Van Bostel said he wished to thank all those who worked on the projects in the past week and urged everyone to participate in the events coming up.

Locks Cagers Tip Black Creek Team

Combined Locks — League leading Combined Locks cagers recorded their fourth straight victory as they defeated Black Creek 26 to 16 here.

It was the first loss of the season for the Black Creek team. Tonight the Locks team will be playing at Seymour.

Bill Wallace was the high scorer for the winners as he dropped in 16 of the 26 points. Casey Van Cusk followed with six markers.

In the preliminary game the Black Creek B team easily defeated Combined Locks, 27 to 9.

Board to Meet

A Time for Reflection

The next 10 years will be interesting ones for Americans who like to study and read about the great events in their nation's history, particularly the tumultuous events of the Civil War decade.

During this period many important centennials will be observed, celebrating such events as the warfare in Kansas over slavery that foreshadowed the great conflict to come, John Brown's raid at Harper's Ferry, the election of Abraham Lincoln, the firing on Fort Sumter, the great battles from Bull Run to Chancellorsville, Antietam to Gettysburg, the surrender at Appomattox, Lincoln's assassination and finally the "tragic era" of the Reconstruction. It will be a time of even more intense interest in the politics, the personalities, the military strategy and tactics, the bloodshed and sacrifice, the heroism and patriotism of that awesome chapter in our history.

And, we hope, it will be a period during which men and women of good will, both North and South, will re-examine the reasons why that tragic conflict took place — the great schism in political thought, in interpreting the American Dream, in basic attitudes toward human life itself which was really at the root of the conflict.

It is especially important that people who live in states like Wisconsin that gave so much of their blood and treasure to insure victory for the Union understand why the men and women living here in those days, whose thinking and feelings and loyalties constitute the bedrock on which our own political life is founded, made that sacrifice. No adequate history of Wisconsin, for example, can be written that does not explain why the people of this relatively sparsely settled state which had only recently entered the Union, most of whose immediate forebears, had left Europe to escape military service, willingly sent so many of their sons to die on southern battlefields.

For it was in the Civil War that the modern United States was really forged; it was in this terrible fratricidal conflict that America emerged as the world's leading advocate of political organization that secures human freedom through the processes of law. The secessionists took the words of the Declaration of Independence literally to mean that any state, any political subdivision has an inherent right to independence and sovereignty. Leaders of the North, such as Lincoln, realized that this idea carried within it the seed not only of national fragmentation, but of fragmentation of human liberty itself. All men are created equal, yet each man has a responsibility to his fellow human beings that finds expression in laws that must be obeyed. That is what the Civil War was really all about.

More Power From the Wisconsin River

The Wisconsin Valley Improvement company was chartered by the legislature many years ago for the express purpose of harnessing the water power sites along the Wisconsin river and it has succeeded to the point where the Wisconsin is known as the state's hardest working river. At the moment the company is seeking authority to build a dam on a tributary of the Wisconsin known as the New Wood river in Lincoln county.

As usual, when flooding is proposed to create new water power, there is a big argument over the proposal. Those opposed to flooding the New Wood area declare the dam would damage the fishing in the river and would ruin five deer yards on lands owned by the state. The legitimate conservationists and those with other purposes in mind have succeeded in stirring up considerable interest in the matter.

However, there is no need to resort to name-calling or to pose as experts on either side of the case. There have been many such cases up for decision before. The state has an orderly way of handling them and this one will be handled in that way.

The Wisconsin Conservation commission is opposed to flooding the land. It has challenged the proponents and a hearing will be held before the Wisconsin Public Service commission in Merrill on Jan. 22.

At that time testimony from both sides will be heard and the decision should be made upon the basis of that testimony rather than upon the loud outcries heard in other places.

Much of the opposition to the construction of the dam comes from a self-styled "crusading newspaper" in Madison. Sometimes this paper "crusades" up the river and sometimes it "crusades" down stream. This time it is out to save the fish and the deer at all costs. Many people recall an instance a few years ago when it was out for more power on the Flambeau with no thought of the poor fish.

The Flambeau development was a much more important matter from the scenic and wild-life viewpoint than is the New Wood. The late Dr. Leopold used to refer to the Flambeau as one of the last significant remnants of wilderness in Wisconsin. The flooding in that case was sought by a rural electric cooperative and that seems to account for the difference in the direction of the crusade.

The decision in the New Wood river case, as in all such cases, should be decided upon the evidence presented at a hearing and not by yapping "crusades" which are for waterpower one day and for the fish the next.

Gov. Williams' Troubles

No ranking political figure of any other state has tramped the political routes of Wisconsin in recent years with such eagerness as Gov. Williams of Michigan.

The governor of our neighboring state has made dozens of pilgrimages here to campaign against the Republicans, the majority party of Wisconsin for a generation, and incidentally to build local fences for what is more and more obviously his ambition to get the Democratic presidential nomination.

He has offered gratuitous advice on local political affairs, and at times in his official capacity as Michigan state executive he has shown a contemptuous disbelief in the integrity of our public institutions, as when he repeatedly refused to extradite a Michigan constituent wanted here for trial on a serious charge.

Mr. Williams' local admirers and his critics, therefore, will surely be interested in the quality of his own stewardship at Lansing, as shown by recent disclosures of the state of his treasury there. The neighbor governor, it is now shown, is worried about the prospect of a deficit in his state budget of some $30,000,000 for the current fiscal year that will end on July 1.

We can only wonder what the Democratic admirers of this glittering and easy traveling leader of Michigan liberalism would say if Gov. Thomson, a Republican in charge of Wisconsin state affairs at Madison, was confronted by a similar deficit in Wisconsin.

We won't essay a guess. We leave it to the imagination of the reader, of whatever political persuasion.

Lop Off 'Extras' in School Building Plans

Editor, Post-Crescent:

The intentions of the school board to publicize school needs is a step in the right direction, as the public has a right to know where their tax dollar is going and to quiz the board on building needs.

Mr. Mann defends the policy of building cafeterias because they are in public buildings, though they lie idle most of the time. That is not answer enough to justify the cost of furnishing and building them, "as economy demands that all spaces be used as much of the time as possible," says the National Council of Schoolhouse Construction, a "distinguished society of educators who abhor the waste of school funds, and whose studies should be perused by school boards everywhere." The quotes are those of Mr. Holman Harvey whose article on school costs appears in the September issue of Readers Digest.

Comparing costs per cubic square foot with costs in other cities is not a way of proving you're not building lavish schools. It is like trying to convince the public that taxes are not at an all-time high because you've found them somewhat lower in comparison to another city of same size.

The state of Washington will not contribute a cent for auditoriums or other non-classroom space, because they consider them luxuries. We can't deny that school taxes are at the highest level in American history, so let's lop off the "extras" while still on the drawing boards.

Remember that schools are being built by taxpayers in all income brackets; even some unemployed and sick, widows and retired folk whose dollar doesn't stretch very far. If we would learn to "wear the moccasins of each other" there would be more sunshine in the world and more willingness to work for what is good.

Elevators Not Counted

From Wisconsin Tax News

The Pentagon has 7,600 windows, 65,000 light fixtures, 3,000 clocks, 50 water fountains, 200 acres of lawn, 150 stairways and 19 escalators. These bits of information the U. S. military district of Wisconsin recently sent out gratis among nine pages of mimeographed similar material. Augmenting the statistics was the information that the Pentagon has "many" elevators. This is one of the reasons, the United States has a $38 billion defense budget and talks about boosting it. After all, the army is so short-handed there is no one around to count elevators.

Atomic Sub Success Because Navy Brass Was Certain It Would Fail

BY GEORGE SOKOLSKY
(Copyright, 1958)

The testimony of Admiral Hyman Rickover before the senate preparedness investigating subcommittee was startling in its human quality and in its tale of the effort of an individual to serve his country by modernizing military equipment while all the time fighting off a rear guard action of older officers who had forgotten that the means of war constantly change. The nuclear submarine was the achievement of the organizing genius of Admiral Rickover.

Admiral Rickover told Senator Johnson's committee that the German air force during World War II had gained the reputation of being the most capable research and development organization in the world. After the war, Americans made a study of this superiority. From these studies, Admiral Rickover reached the conclusion that for research and development, it is essential the naval officers be as strong technically as administratively.

Welded Into Team

To show how little the navy thought of nuclear problems, Rickover and several other naval officers were sent to Oak Ridge in 1946 to learn reactor technology. After great effort and much scheming to overcome opposition, they were welded into a team in preparation for work on the "Nautilus," which was already in Rickover's mind. Rickover had recommended that this team of highly specialized men be kept together to work on a nuclear-driven submarine. But let Admiral Rickover tell the story:

"However, the group was broken up as soon as we came back, and we were split. In fact, the thought at that time was to not let me stay in Washington but to send me to Oak Ridge as a declassification officer, some clerical job.

"But fortunately there were other voices in Washington. I was kept on and I was assigned this job all by myself, and given an office in an 'ex-ladies' powder room." This was in 1947.

Admiral Rickover recounted:

"As soon as it was definite that I would stay in Washington, I determined that the first thing to do was to get a letter from Admiral Nimitz, who was then the Chief of Naval Operations, to authorize the design, development, and construction of an atomic power plant for a submarine. This letter took me three months to get signed, and it became my hunting license. I now had a hunting license, but there were no deer around. I had no money."

This is cited as an example of the things that happen that made it possible for the Russians to defeat us in a field in which Americans have always been pre-eminent, engineering and manufacturing.

It took three years, from the time the small group of naval officers were sent to Oak Ridge before all the arrangements could be made between the Bureau of Ships of the Navy, the Chief of Naval Operations and the Atomic Energy commission to make it possible for an organization, jointly controlled, to come into existence to plan a nuclear submarine.

No Precedents

There were no precedents and therefore Admiral Rickover could go ahead without worrying about rules and regulations. As he testified: "We had no particular contract design for the prototype. We don't know what it means. We just said here is a job to be done and we are not bound by any rules that people have written up in books on research and development. We said we want to build a nuclear-powered submarine. We will build one ashore first."

Again, this colloquy took place:

"Mr. Weisl, (Chief counsel) What I was trying to get at, admiral, was whether you followed the usual procedure that is followed in the military in getting this job done."

"Admiral Rickover. No sir, no usual procedures will accomplish unusual jobs. No, sir."

"Mr. Weisl: How were you able to do that? How were you able to avoid following the usual procedures?"

"Admiral Rickover. One of the main reasons was that there were so many people who were certain the project would fail, and they did not want to be associated with it. This was one of the most wonderful things."

"It is quite different today but at that time nearly everybody knew it was going to fail so they let us alone completely, almost completely, so we were able to do the job."

It is all so human, too human. We got the nuclear submarine ready and ahead of time because those who craved success would not touch what looked like a crack-pot idea.

Ice Harvest of Superior Quality

79 YEARS AGO

Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for the week of Jan. 25, 1879.

The ice harvest is about closed for the season and the quality is far superior to anything that has been put up here for the three years past.

The ice is from 18 to 23 inches thick, clear and without much snow ice. Having been put up during the crisp, cold weather, it has not been damaged by the sun or warmth.

Mr. Lehman has put up a larger quantity than usual, and will be able to supply all demands made upon him during the summer months.

Mr. Cottrell at the Waverly House has put up his own ice this winter as he uses a large quantity and considered it more economical than purchasing it as he used to.

Mr. Muench, at the Fourth Ward brewery has filled his large ice house over his beer vaults. Our principal meat market men also have filled their ice houses: Mr. Strobe has put up about 100 tons at Telulah Springs; Mr. Langdon has put up an ice house full near Richmond Paper Mill; and some private citizens have done likewise.

The securing of the crop in this vicinity has given considerable employment to quite a large number of men and their teams.

State Democrats Set $115,000 Budget for '58

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison — The disclosure that the Democratic party organization has approved a budget of some $115,000 serves as a reminder that political party financing is one of the most difficult and least understood aspects of modern politics.

Wyngaard

The Democrats are somewhat ambitious in their budget figure — as suggested by the possibly whimsical notion of some of the state committee members that it would be a good idea to organize a lottery to raise the sum. The party hasn't had money in such amounts during its history here. The figure must be judged, moreover, in connection with the fact that most candidates will have their own campaign committee with separate fund solicitations and expenditures.

The interested citizen who reflects about the size of the state, the number of its voters, and the evident growth in popular acceptance of the Democrats might say the amount is a modest one — against the Red Feather goal in a middle-sized Wisconsin town for example. Yet by Wisconsin Democratic experience it would be a luxurious budget.

HOW IT GOES

If it is assumed that there are 500,000 Wisconsin persons who usually vote Democrat — and it is a conservative assumption — a per capita contribution of 25 cents would meet the budget generously.

But parties are not financed on such a popular subscription basis — least of all the major parties.

As anybody who has ever worked on a charity finance committee knows, solicitation of small contributions is impracticable. The cost overtakes the receipts. Moreover, the idea of popular contributions to political parties has not yet caught on — and perhaps never will. The average man accepts the idea of a contribution to his church, or a favorite civic organization. In Europe popular financial support of parties is also fairly well established.

But in this country political party contributions tend to come from a thin layer of the population — either the extremely earnest believers in a political point of view, or persons of means, or persons who contribute with the purpose, consciously or otherwise, of ingratiating themselves with men in power or men who might be in power. The latter is a bi-partisan phenomenon. Democrats have them, and use them, as do the Republicans.

THE ISSUE

In Wisconsin for some years the Democrats have made virtue out of necessity and have exploited the issue of campaign financing against the Republicans. Better financed in most local situations, the Republicans have been accused of having a dishonest advantage because of their superior purses. There might be instances where that has been a valid complaint — and especially in some close elections.

Yet there is a momentum in campaign financing, as there is in party organization. A party that is apparently headed for success finds it easier to raise money — as the Democrats obliquely attest by their deliberately ambitious budget goal today.

If the Democrats should capture the state government in the fall elections, it is reasonably certain that they would find it easier to raise money for the 1960 campaign, and equally probable that the Republicans would find it more difficult. Democrats as well as Republicans have sometimes found in their mail, after winning office, campaign contributions from persons who were deaf during the campaign season.

The idea of party financing on a mass base is a good one, from every aspect of the democratic idea. But it reckons without the realities of human nature. Campaign financing by the rank and file, without the compromising of principle or integrity in fact or in appearance, will remain an ideal for some time, it may be feared.

Those 1952 good Republican cloth coats must have had a fine trade-in value. Mrs. Pat Nixon showed up at a White House dinner in ermine and the wife of Treasury Secy. Anderson in mink.

office space. Alongside it the girders already are rising for an addition that will provide another 140,000 square feet. Eventually two more buildings are planned on the site.

Joseph A. Anderson, Flint, Mich., general manager of the General Motors division, said AC now has about 5,400 employees in its Milwaukee operations, 1,400 of them in engineering. The operations here are also supported with an engineering staff of some 300 people in Flint and a proportional amount of productive people.

He said AC does not expect any huge manpower buildup as the result of its increase in guided missile work. The firm has about 3,200 subcontractors supporting the operations here and he declared the company tried to have about 50 per cent of its work done by subcontractors.

Economy Program While the plant also produces the division's peacetime commercial products, it is obvious that the missile systems dominate. The official speeches didn't say it, but one of the guides admitted that "things have sure been different since sputnik."

Before the Russians launched their satellites, he confided, the plant was feeling the pinch of the government's economy program. Now the pressure is on for production, with cost being a strictly secondary factor.

The guidance system being made here operates on the gyroscope principle, familiar as a toy to a generation of youngsters. The gyroscope provides a "platform in space" which replaces the stars — used for thousands of years — as a reference point for navigation. Exact Relationship This "platform" must remain in an exact relationship to the center of the earth no matter how the missile carrying it yaws, rolls or pitches. If winds, air pressure or any other factor tries to turn a missile off its course, the "brain" must detect the change and correct for it within a split second.

As one official put it, "Once that missile is fired, it's too late for any mistakes." Another pointed out that a thumb-print on some of the parts of the guidance system might throw the missile off its course.

In one section of the plant the workers—many of them women—enter through an "air lock" when they come to work. don nylon coveralls, snoods and boots, remove all face powder and other makeup. In another section girls sit at 30-power microscopes inspecting tiny parts for imperfections, which are then removed with dentist's tools.

Huge machine tools are purchased elsewhere, then completely torn down and rebuilt to provide accuracy far greater than that required in other industries. More than 3,200 subcontractors are involved in this project; the main castings, for instance, are made in Manitowish.

Launching Site One gains the impression that considerably more people are engaged in testing the various components than in making them. One machine turns constantly to reproduce the revolutions of the earth — or as the engineers say, "one revolution per star-time day." In another area the exact conditions of a missile launching site are reproduced to test the system's ability to withstand the terric pressures of a launching

The result of all this is what the company calls its "Achievement" guidance system. Among its advantages are the fact that it is completely self-contained; it sends no signals that an enemy could intercept, is immune to jamming, is not affected by weather, will operate in the heavy lower atmosphere or out in space, and can be set to change course an infinite number of times on the same flight.

How much the visiting newsmen, including this reporter understood of what was told them here today is questionable. One thing, though, is sure. Buck Rogers would be at home in this little corner of Wisconsin.

Faithful Dog Watches Over His Fallen Master Bunker Hill, Mich. — The barking of a beagle hunting dog keeping a faithful vigil led searchers yesterday to where his master had fallen dead with a heart attack.

Zenon Borejko, 37, of Jackson, Mich., had died while hunting rabbits in central Michigan's Ingham county.

The dog remained at the scene some 24 hours and attracted the attention of searchers by barking and jumping.

Flames Sweep Interior of Print Shop Evansville — — Flames gouged the interior of the 2-story Antes Printing company plant Monday night, reducing the building to a blackened shell of brick.

The loss will easily exceed $100,000," said William Sumner, Jr., secretary-treasurer of the firm and publisher of the weekly Evansville Review.

Both the Review and another weekly, the Brooklyn Teller, were printed at the plant, which employed about 20 persons.

Among the records destroyed was a complete file of Evansville newspapers, dating back to the Civil war days.

Also lost were several carloads of paper, some of it owned by the University of Wisconsin, for which the firm did considerable printing.

Cause of the fire was undetermined. The blaze erupted about 7:30 when the building was unoccupied.

Martin 'Sea Master' Passes Flight Test

Baltimore — — Martin company's remodeled jet-engined Sea Master passed its first flight test yesterday.

The huge seaplane capable of flying 600 miles an hour was tried out in the air for an hour, 55 minutes under observation of the navy.

The first two experimental models of the plane designed for long range reconnaissance and mine laying blew up. The trouble was blamed on the tail.

Indicating it had been corrected, the third model's designation has been changed to 'Appleton Post-Crescent A 7' from the "X" on the first.

Two. The first YP-6-M will be tested. Martin then will make followed by five more to be 18 production types.

HOW TO DEAL WITH YOUR TENSIONS

The quest for peace of mind—or for good mental health, which is another name for it—is universal. We have to work to achieve it. Following is one of a few simple, ready-to-hand actions which may help you.

ESCAPE FOR A WHILE

Sometimes, when things go wrong, it helps to escape from the painful problem for a while: to lose yourself in a movie or a book or a game, or a brief trip for a change of scene. Making yourself "stand there and suffer" is a form of self-punishment, not a way to solve a problem. It is perfectly realistic and healthy to escape punishment long enough to recover breath and balance. But be prepared to come back and deal with your difficulty when you are more composed, and when you and others involved are in better condition emotionally and intellectually to deal with it. This is one of eleven simple suggestions that can be helpful if they are applied diligently. If you would like further information, write for the free new booklet "How To Deal With Your Tensions," written by top experts in the field of psychiatry. Coffee Hour, Dance Slated For March of Dimes Benefit

The first of an annual round of coffee parties sponsored by the American Legion auxiliary for the March of Dimes has been scheduled from 9 o'clock to 11 o'clock Wednesday morning at the Legion Memorial building.

Proceeds of the coffee series will be donated to the polio fund with those attending the events asked for contributions. Women attending will be urged to give private parties including 10 or more friends and neighbors as guests.

More than 100 Appleton women are expected to attend the kick-off party, to which auxiliary members and Y's Menettes are invited. Mrs. Seymour Lynch, auxiliary community service chairman, urges organizations' members be accompanied by guests.

Highlight of Wednesday's program will be the awarding of a coffee pot, donated to the auxiliary by Mrs. Paul V. Cary, county director for the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. Award proceeds will also go to the March of Dimes.

A talent show will spark a benefit dance for polio victims Sunday evening at Van Abel's, Hollandtown. The annual March of Dimes event, which has been staged since 1947, will feature the talent parade at 8 o'clock with a local orchestra engaged for later dancing. Bob Lloyd, Fox Valley sportscaster, will serve as master of ceremonies.

In Good Taste Extra Call To Hostess Not Needed

Dear Mrs. Post: It seems to me that in the present day, people are becoming very careless about calling their hostess to thank her for a lovely time after having been invited to a party at her house. This is instinctive with me. When I have had a pleasant evening at a friend's house, I do not feel satisfied until I have called her and told her how much I enjoyed the evening even though I intend to return her invitation as soon as I can. Will you please tell me what the proper procedure is today regarding "party calls"?

Answer: To make a point of calling the hostess to thank her for her hospitality is certainly not an obligation. In fact if every guest called her hostess the day after a big party, she would have little time to do anything else but answer the telephone and instead of it being a pleasure she would find it a great nuisance. To thank your hostess when you leave, and to return her invitation if you can, is the only requirement.

No Tip Needed
Dear Mrs. Post: The other evening my husband and I went to a restaurant for dinner. The service was abominable and the waiter extremely rude. My husband was so incensed over this that he did not leave a tip. I think he was wrong and that he should have left a small tip but he says he was quite justified in not leaving anything. What is your opinion?

Answer: There is no reason why your husband should have tipped a waiter who added rudeness to abominable service nor is there any reason why you should ever go back to that restaurant.

Gift for Dentist
Dear Mrs. Post: A very dear friend of mine whom I have known since childhood is preparing to open his own office. He is a dentist. Would it be proper to send him a present at this time? If so, can you give me some suggestions as to what would be proper to send?

Answer: Give him something for his waiting room—such as an ash tray or possibly a subscription to a magazine.

Fashions From Italy Styles for a Cold or Rainy Summer Displayed

BY CELE WOHL
Florence, Italy — Two Italian fashion designers are ready for a cold or rainy summer.

As the Italian fashion industry shifted its spring and summer showings to Florence, Milan, a master knitter from Milan, amazed a big audience last night with after-ski clothes and knitted wool gowns, the latter presumably for draughty country house dining.

Her collection was rounded out with beautiful sweaters and jersey tights which fit like a second skin, without a wrinkle.

Avolio, another Milan design, also departed from the usual spring and summer trend. One handsome rain coat followed.

ed another, over heavy worsted suits.

Other designers took a more traditional view of the weather, with revealing bathing suits and shorts, or skin tight slacks and sweaters. The first Florence showings are devoted to sports wear.

Milan designer Bertoli showed elaborate beach outfits featuring the briefest shorts seen during a day of brief sun outfits. His elaborate skirts were velvet banded and beribboned.

A newcomer — Camisene, the house of Roberto Fabbiani, of Florence — promoted a revival of the comfortable culotte. His fabrics had original prints inspired by local Etruscan lore. There were warrior shields and helmets, classic columns and archers, all printed in gold on cotton.

No Stigma Attached to Mental Illness, Worried Mother Told

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN: I have a similar problem to that of "Thinking Mother." This woman wanted to know if she should tell her child that he was born out of wedlock. I want to know if (and how) to tell my children that I was once a patient in a mental hospital.

This has been weighing heavily on my mind because I know of the stigma attached to mental illness. It's a shame that such feelings should exist in our enlightened generation but that's the way it is.

My husband says perhaps it would be best not to mention it at all. But I'm afraid if I don't tell them, someone else will. Please advise me.

CONCERNED MOTHER You wouldn't be ashamed to tell your children that you broke your leg, would you? Well, a mental breakdown should be handled the same way. Discuss it openly, without a hint of shame or secrecy, it is a sickness and not a disgrace.

Have a talk with your doctor and ask him to recommend reading material. Join the Mental Health Society and become active in the group. When you are relaxed about the subject and feel that there is NO stigma attached to mental illness, your children will then adopt the same healthy attitude.

DEAR ANN: We have a problem to put before you, and your answer will settle it once and for all. My husband is honest and faithful and has nothing to hide.

He's an insurance adjuster and sometimes he gets calls from women during the evening, at home. I am NOT jealous nor am I nosy. Yet I think, as his wife, I have a right to know who is calling.

Whenever I ask him who is on the phone he replies, "What difference does it make. You don't know her anyway." Then he clams up for the evening.

Tell me, Ann, since he has nothing to hide, why does he take on this secretive attitude which only leads to bad feeling?

—MADAME Q. Chances are, if you didn't ask your husband who was on the phone, he'd volunteer the information. The fact that you made an issue of it by probing, probably gets his back up.

In a good marriage there are no "secrets," but merely because people are related doesn't give them the right to invade each other's privacy. Don't let your childish curiosity turn you into a meddlesome nag. Since these calls are strictly business, what difference does it make if it's Mrs. Dinkelspiel or Mrs. Volkswagen?

Beauty Average Woman Needs Beauty Aids

By Marian Matthews

A well-organized supply of beauty aids are necessary for the average woman.

Even the woman who boasts she doesn't use more than one or two cosmetics should have good cleansing creams, lubricating creams, plus a skin lotion or astringent to use after a cream cleansing. On every dressing table, in the kitchen, in the bathroom there should be a bottle of hand lotion. Every woman wants young, lovely hands and the best way to insure this is to use your cream or lotion before going outdoors, before you begin chores, particularly if you must put hands into water.

Count among your beauty blessings a good supply of cosmetics—different colors for day and evening. This applies not only for lipstick but your foundation color and whatever type of make-up you use—pancake, liquid or face powder.

With eye make-up so important these days buy yourself a supply of mascara, eye pencil and shadow.

Fragrances belong to every woman so if Santa was negligent on this score, choose one for yourself!

Many women stock up on linens and other sale-priced items

—don't overlook the beauty department.

Ask Six Plain Carpet Questions

Nothing seems more important than the color of plain carpet—the color of so large an area means so much to the room. And color is part of good investment in carpet—if it's wrong or grows tiresome, discard threatens too soon. Settle the appearance question by carefully shopping color in the quality and weaves preferred. But don't miss a trick in making decisions about wear or fade-by-day freshness. Many stores have sound information to give you on exacting tests made by the carpet manufacturer. Ask these questions: How long will the carpet last? Often it has been subjected to heavy traffic for long periods and full data is available. What about soil resistance and clean-

Styles Upset Men in Past

Dallas — Mrs. Virginia

L. Gambrell, director of the Dallas Historical Society museum, told the city council yesterday "Women haven't been dressing to suit men much of the time since 1830."

She said during the state fair, 25,000 male votes were cast at an exhibit titled "What Do Men Like in Women's Fashions."

Female garb since 1830 was exhibited for the votes.

Mrs. Gambrell, in the museum's annual report to the council, said "The favorite was a 1907 dress which was softly feminine — and left no doubt that it contained a lady, not potatoes."

Culbertson on Bridge

By Ely Culbertson

South's play of his three-trump contract, below, was commendable on a safety-first basis — but South was either ignorant of or he ignored the realities of match-point duplicate. The game he was playing.

North, dealer. Both sides vulnerable.

This was the very peculiar bidding at the table in reference:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1 C	Pass
1 D	Pass	2 C	Pass
2 S	Pass	3 N T (end)

West opened the spade jack, dummy ducked, and East overtook with the queen and returned the spade five. Looking ahead (as he explained later), declarer took this trick with the spade ace, cashed the two top hearts, and then ran off the four diamond tricks, discarding his own low heart. Carefully noticing that West followed suit to four diamonds, and definitely placing six spades with West because of the early play, declarer then elected to throw West in by leading the

Hygienist to Talk To Dental Unit

Mrs. Winifred Kestly, dental hygienist for Appleton schools, will speak at a meeting of the Outagamie Dental Society auxiliary at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. C. A. Frey, 1455 W. Prospect avenue. Mrs. J. E. LeFevre will assist the hostess.

South's statement was correct but it had no pertinence. South was not playing rubber bridge. He should have realized, surely, that at a great many other tables, if not all others, North would be the declarer at three no trump and would obviously get a heart lead from East. On that lead, there would be time and safety for the club finesse, and so all those other declarers would make at least 11 tricks. It was only because the bidding at this table was so remarkable — a fact South should have recognized — that the hand was played from the South position, and it was patently wrong to apply safety measures to a misplaced contract.

Our Children

Schools Don't Make Scholars; Students Must Want to Learn

BY ANGELO PATRI

"Why don't you make him learn? You're the teacher. I'm a busy woman. I have four other children at home. You can't expect me to watch what he does in school. Make him learn."

Granted, it is the teachers' duty to teach. It is the pupils' duty and privilege to learn. He is the only one who can do it. Until he wants to learn, no power on earth can make him. Teaching is an art and not too many of us acquire it. Not that people could not, but learning it does take time and study and application and teachers are so busy these days. In their hurry to live they try to make authority and force take the place of leadership. It won't work.

There are many factors involved in a child's learning in school. Few children, even those who reach secondary school, can learn every subject in the course. Some, strangely enough, hate the mention of history, some shun mathematics, some cannot learn a foreign language. This creates a difficulty when parents insist that a child finish the course and be graduated and they are likely to fall back on "Make him."

There are times when it is essential to stand by and insist that a child do what is prescribed. It is right to insist that he try and try again, but if after repeated trials, after encouragement and leadership by both home and school, he does not accept the teaching, "making him" won't serve.

Many factors enter into a child's education that an easy solution is not possible when one of them balks. Heredity, mental endowments, family background, physical and mental health, personality of the teacher and cultural clashes between home and school—all have their weight. The best a teacher can do is to try all the different approaches to the child's interests, all possible help toward self-help, the skill and knowledge of his profession. He must hope for the best, knowing the odds are against him yet keeping optimistic about the result.

Gifted Child Challenges Discussed by Teachers

Lawrence Professor Sees Need to Supply Youngsters 'With All Work They Can Do'

The gifted child, problems met in attempting to identify such children and the need to challenge such youngsters were the main topics of discussion when elementary teachers held their annual meeting Monday evening at Foster school.

The discussion was led by Dr. Edwin H. Olson, assistant professor of psychology at Lawrence college, and three public school teachers — Miss Alice Moehring, Miss Marie Turiff and Miss Olga Heller.

About 300 teachers and PTA representatives gathered in the school auditorium to hear of progress in the elementary school system's study of the gifted child and his needs. "One way to meet the needs of the gifted youngster is to teach him all he can learn," Dr. Olson contended. "Children with high IQs have to be given more to do or they'll end up in trouble."

Other Methods However, he noted, IQ tests are not enough to identify superior children. As supplements in the identification process he asked teachers to look for the extent of the child's vocabulary and his use of it, his ability to generalize from the specific to the less specific, his persistence, his speed of learning and range of thought be given to summer school "to give depth and breadth to programs," careful curriculum and orientation plans to narrow the gap between elementary and junior high schools, a continued effort to keep class loads small, a study of entrance policies and "a continued attempt to be forward looking through evaluation of the total curriculum and to provide for individual differences."

Once the child is identified as superior, three methods can be used to meet his needs. Dr. Olson maintained. The child can be segregated to classrooms with other youngsters of high ability, the curriculum can be enriched or his program can be accelerated.

The professor said he favored the program used in Appleton schools because each child is given all he can handle within the classroom structure. "We must push these children as far as possible and, if necessary, give homework as early as the second grade. You'll find you can't make a child work too hard as long as the work remains interesting and stimulating to him."

Teachers' Report In brief speeches before Dr. Olson's presentation, Miss Turiff gave a report of changes within the elementary system during the last 20 years and Miss Heller reported on the curriculum in-service program in which teachers in each school building study a particular portion of the curriculum and its relation to the superior child. Miss Moehring looked into the future and suggested serious thought be given to sum-

TWIN CITIES

Race Develops for Neenah Mayor Job

W. E. Wilke to Run Against Sande; 4-Way Contest Arises in 6th Ward

Neenah — A race for the mayor's chair in Neenah developed Monday afternoon when Warren E. Wilke, 2383 Main street, took out nomination papers.

A four-way race for alderman also arose in the city's Sixth ward Monday and today when Carl B. Coenen, 649 Wilson street, and Theodore A. Dupont, 767 W. Cecil street, applied for papers.

Wilke will oppose Mayor George E. Sande in the April 1 election. Sande has been mayor of Neenah since April, 1956, and also served eight years as mayor in the 1920's and 30's. Wilke, a newcomer to Neenah politics, is a used car dealer and licensed real estate broker. Originally from Oshkosh, he has lived in the Neenah area since 1929 and in the city for about seven years off and on. He has been in the construction and real estate business for about 30 years and has a business and engineering background. He has been president of Neenah Motors since 1946. He is 55 years old and married.

The two new Sixth ward candidates will run against Russell E. Ihde, 925 Gail avenue, and Edward Piekars, 967 Hunt avenue, who announced earlier. None of the Sixth ward hopefuls has ever run for election or held public office before.

Urges Churches Forget Their Differences

Methodist Bishop Stresses Missions For South America

Neenah — All religions must overcome their differences and work toward fundamental unity in missionary work, the Rev. H. Clifford Northcott, Madison bishop of the Methodist church, told members of the Neenah club Monday noon in his talk on his trip to South America.

He viewed the missionary work underway in South America and declared something more was needed than meeting the basic human needs such as food, medicine and shelter.

He described the item needed as "faith and fellowship to give purpose and dignity to life." The Christian mission must win hearts and minds of men which is his greatest task, he continued, stating it must be an educational and healing mission.

The need for "evangelical witness" is great in Latin America where secularism and inadequate leadership are two obstacles to overcome, Bishop Northcott continued. He noted that too many Latin Americans have a disrespect for property and for law.

He traced the historical background of Roman Catholicism in Latin America and said that that church had a great opportunity to develop Christian witnesses in the Latin American countries and that recently the church had become more aware of its responsibility and was making great strides, along with Protestant missionary churches, in doing a job with developing a Christian witness among the South Americans.

were in operation. The two squad cars patrolled 50,000 ing meter fines during the four miles each and the cycle patrol and one half months the meters trolled 7,410 miles.

Savings, Loan Group Reelects Two Directors

Association Head Reports 9.1 Pct. Increase in Assets

Neenah — Two directors of the Twin City Savings and Loan association were reelected at Monday afternoon's meeting of the shareholders. They are T. M. Gilbert, president of Gilbert Paper company, and E. F. Nemitz, a retired former department head at Marathon.

The directors named Ivaux W. Andersen as president and treasurer. Nemitz and Gilbert as vice presidents. Herbert R. Fagel as secretary. William H. Foth as assistant secretary. Evelyn Garfield as assistant treasurer and F. O. Heckrodt as chief appraiser.

Despite vigorous competition for savings and the "tightest" mortgage money market in years, the association boosted its assets by $1,061,000 or 9.1 per cent in 1957, Andersen reported.

Net Savings Up
He summarized that net savings were increased by $976,368, or 9.2 per cent, to a total now of $11,577,519. A 9 per cent increase in savings account holders brought that number to 5,732, a gain of 440. A total of $345,794 in earnings, 18.5 per cent more than in 1956, was paid to savers for use of their funds.

Andersen also cited the home mortgage loan portfolio was increased by $503,762, or 5 per cent, bringing the total of home loans outstanding to $10,850,492. Reserves were increased to $849,092 and now exceeded the reserves on hand at the beginning of 1957 by $113,444 or 18.6 per cent.

Money Taken

Oshkosh — The Jahnke Wrecking company office on County Trunk P in the town of Menasha was broken into some time Sunday night. Clarence and Mrs. George Zielinski, Jr. Jahnke reported to the Sheriff's Elizabeth hospital today if his office Monday. He stated that not more than $17 was taken. A rear window in the office was broken to gain entry.

THE SPORTING THING!

We recently read where sport shirts are becoming more and more popular with men in the family. In fact, someone rounded up the figures showing that sport shirts are winning out over business shirts by a score of 9 to 6. That score sounds like a pretty good ball score to us — proving that men in America are becoming more and more sports-minded — that the sporting blood in the American male is beginning to show (especially around the neck and arms) more and more. And we're sure that many are finding that sports equipment is easy to sell or buy with Post-Crescent Want-Ads like this one. This lady found just what she wanted by dialing 2-4243.

Suitor of First Gibson Girl Dies at Age 77

Chicago — Dr. Edward J. Buchanan, whose celebrated courtship of the original "Ziegfeld Follies Gibson Girl" made news 50 years ago, died Monday at 77.

He left as his sole survivor the beauty he wooed and won, Annabelle Whitford. She quit the stage shortly after their highly publicized 1908 marriage.

The last few years, the couple had lived on relief. Early this month they were removed from the old age assistance rolls because Mrs. Buchanan had donated the $900 proceeds of a magazine article to charity.

The article dealt with the sensational Iroquois Theater fire which occurred in Chicago in 1903. She was performing at the theater at the time, and he was in the audience. Both escaped uninjured.

Dr. Buchanan was a graduate of the University of Illinois College of Medicine and a former member of the Illinois Boxing commission. He was a native of Racine, Wis.

In 1915, Buchanan was credited with saving the lives of six passengers when the excursion boat Eastland, capsized in the Chicago river, carrying 812 persons to their deaths. Buchanan plunged into the river to make the rescues.

Probe 'Reformers' In Union Seizure

Washington — Senate racketers probers sought in hearings today to show what happened when self-styled "reformers" seized command of the operating engineers union's big San Francisco Local 3.

Counsel Robert F. Kennedy said leadoff witnesses would include Victor Swanson, whom the "reform" group unseated as business agent-boss of the local, and Pat Clancy, its new president under the "reform" banner.

Kennedy said the hearing was going on despite pleas by William E. Maloney, the union's millionaire international president, and two of Maloney's top Chicago lieutenants that they are too ill to testify. Kennedy said the committee hopes Maloney, Vice President Anton Imhahn, and Andrew Leach, assistant to Imhahn, would feel well enough later to testify.

Chairman McClellan (D-Ark.) has announced the committee has found evidence of "corruption and a lot of conniving" involving high officials of the union and some employers, but he accused no one by name.

Warehouseing Space Available

Neenah — A prominent local storages for general commodities for storing "dead" office records on a massive scale. Officials and managers of business establishments — large and small — will be relieved to learn that the major problem of surplus or dead office records storage can now be eliminated at a minor cost.

J. J. Keller and Associates, 145 W. Wisconsin avenue, serves the entire Fox river valley in the transportation, warehousing and insurance field, in building a new structure will and dry area to prevent dampness, not relieve the problem. It may relieve the space problem for a while, conversely the cost problem is intensified.

A business firm cannot afford to assign expensive space, that may cost as high as 20 cents per square foot per month to maintain, for the storage of dead records, files and equipment when this same space is available with a reliable public warehouse firm on a short or long-term basis for a fraction of this cost.

Mr. Keller strongly advises that all administrators, who have any dead storage problems whatsoever, investigate the possibilities of utilizing this service. A special warehouse has been developed for this particular type of storage that results in an extremely low cost to the users.

It is also pointed out that consideration has been given to the necessities of providing an extremely clean, well-ventilated, fireproof, mold and insect-free environment.

Since entering the warehousing field several years ago, owner J. J. Keller recognized a need for special storage facilities. The latest innovation in the special storage field is announced herewith.

It is well recognized in business that dead records and surplus records must be maintained for various reasons — sometimes to comply with company policy and, at other times, to comply with statutory requirements. The storage of these particular files becomes a burden, and increasingly so when a firm has limited office and storage space. Many times, in building a new structure will and dry area to prevent dampness, not relieve the problem. It may

Many times, in building a new structure will and dry area to prevent dampness, not relieve the problem. It may relieve the space problem for a while, conversely the cost problem is intensified.

A business firm cannot afford to assign expensive space, that may cost as high as 20 cents per square foot per month to maintain, for the storage of dead records, files and equipment when this same space is available with a reliable public warehouse firm on a short or long-term basis for a fraction of this cost.

Mr. Keller strongly advises that all administrators, who have any dead storage problems whatsoever, investigate the possibilities of utilizing this service. A special warehouse has been developed for this particular type of storage that results in an extremely low cost to the users.

It is also pointed out that consideration has been given to the necessities of providing an extremely clean, well-ventilated, fireproof, mold and insect-free environment.

11th Annual Dinner

Make Football a Stepping Stone, Thompson Tells Neenah Gridders

Menasha — "Make football just a stepping stone for great accomplishments," Thompson told the Neenah Gridders at the 11th annual dinner Monday evening at the Elks club.

Thompson, who coached at Neenah from 1950-55 and who will leave the profession in June to enter the ministry, declared that football teaches basic lessons. He cited loyalty of the individual, respect for authority and discipline in this category.

He further pointed out that if a player is loyal to the squad he won't break training and that an individual is respected if he can do on the football field what he can do in the classroom.

As for respect for authority and discipline, the coach explained that we all want the luxuries of life and tend to take the easy way out when we have something to do. He cited such discipline in this category such as getting oneself into shape for the football season.

The speaker told now at Ripon college the players said a silent prayer before each game praying not that they would win but that they would lose.

Discusses Players

"Football doesn't have all the answers," he said, "but it has some to get you thinking." The college coach declared that much of his coaching philosophy was developed while in Council Stevens Point and the Neenah system.

He discussed some of the boys that he had coached and told how they overcame tremendous handicaps to become good players and how they taught him that you can't give Wisconsin, following in the footsteps of Tom Wiesner, who

Gharrity Tops Brault by 3 in M-E Point Race

Indian Star Held To Nine Markers In Raider Tangle

Menasha — Several of the leading scorers in the Mid-Eastern conference ran into trouble in last Friday night's games with the result that several positions in the top 12 were changed.

Marty Gharrity, Shawano sharpshooter, still leads the pack with 146 points but his lead was trimmed to three by Two Rivers' Ron Brault. Gharrity, who was averaging 27 points a game, was limited to nine by Two Rivers. Brault scored 15 but that total constituted his poorest effort of the year. Gharrity now has 146 to 143 for his Two Rivers foe.

Neenah's defense set Menasha's Don Nelson down with three points while the Rockets' Fred Seggelink hit 20 to give the latter third place and drop Nelson to fourth. Seggelink has 115, Nelson 106.

Jack Lamers of Kimberly, who is moving up fast, is now fifth with 105 as the result of 24 against Clintonville while Shawano's John Cantwell is the sixth conference eager to better the 100 point total with 103. He made 20 in the Two Rivers game.

Other players who have scored well in the last two games are Clintonville's John Dahly and Bill Simon of Kaukauna, who now have 90 and 85 points respectively. Simon had 26 and 18 in the last two games and Dahly 24 in each. Jim Walsh, who had been the top Kaukauna pointmaker, was held to three points by New London.

New London is the only team without a representative in the top 12. Its best is Dale Monson with 66.

Brault has a 54-50 field goal edge over Gharrity but the latter is tops in free throws with 46.

The unofficial scoring:

Maryland and Bradley Stung By Upsets

West Virginia Remains First In AP Poll

By The Associated Press
If West Virginia's top-ranked Mountaineers and seven companions in the Associated Press' new weekly top 10 of college basketball are grateful today to be involved in mid-term exams, it's little wonder. Monday night was a night for giant-killers.

Sixth-ranked Maryland and tenth rated Bradley learned the hard way — Maryland as it was bounced out of the Atlantic Coast conference leadership by North Carolina State, 57-48, and Bradley in a shocking 58-55 loss to unsung Portland.

Romping Winner
The eight others, and most of the nation's major clubs, are out of competition at least until Saturday while they concentrate on examinations.

West Virginia was again a romping winner in the AP poll with 925 points to 728 for runner-up Kansas.

The second 10 had its hazards last night, too, with fifteenth-rated Michigan State, the Big 10 favorite, solidly whipped by Wisconsin, 66-52.

North Carolina State, creating a tie with North Carolina for the lead in the ACC, threw a zone defense against Maryland that limited the Terps. to only six field goals in the second half.

The standings, with points on a 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 basis (first place votes in parentheses):

1. West Virginia (71)	925
2. Kansas (7)	728
3. Kansas State (2)	628
4. Cincinnati (7)	563
5. San Francisco (2)	533

Bruton Will Miss Start Of Training

Oklahoma City — Outfielder Billy Bruton's right knee, operated on last October for torn ligaments, is improving but won't be ready in time for spring training.

Dr. Dan O'Donoghue, an Oklahoma City bone specialist who performed the operation on the Milwaukee Braves baseball player, said Monday that "seems to be all right" and Bruton is "progressing but it is still too early to tell how soon he'll be able to play baseball. He won't be ready for spring training when it starts."

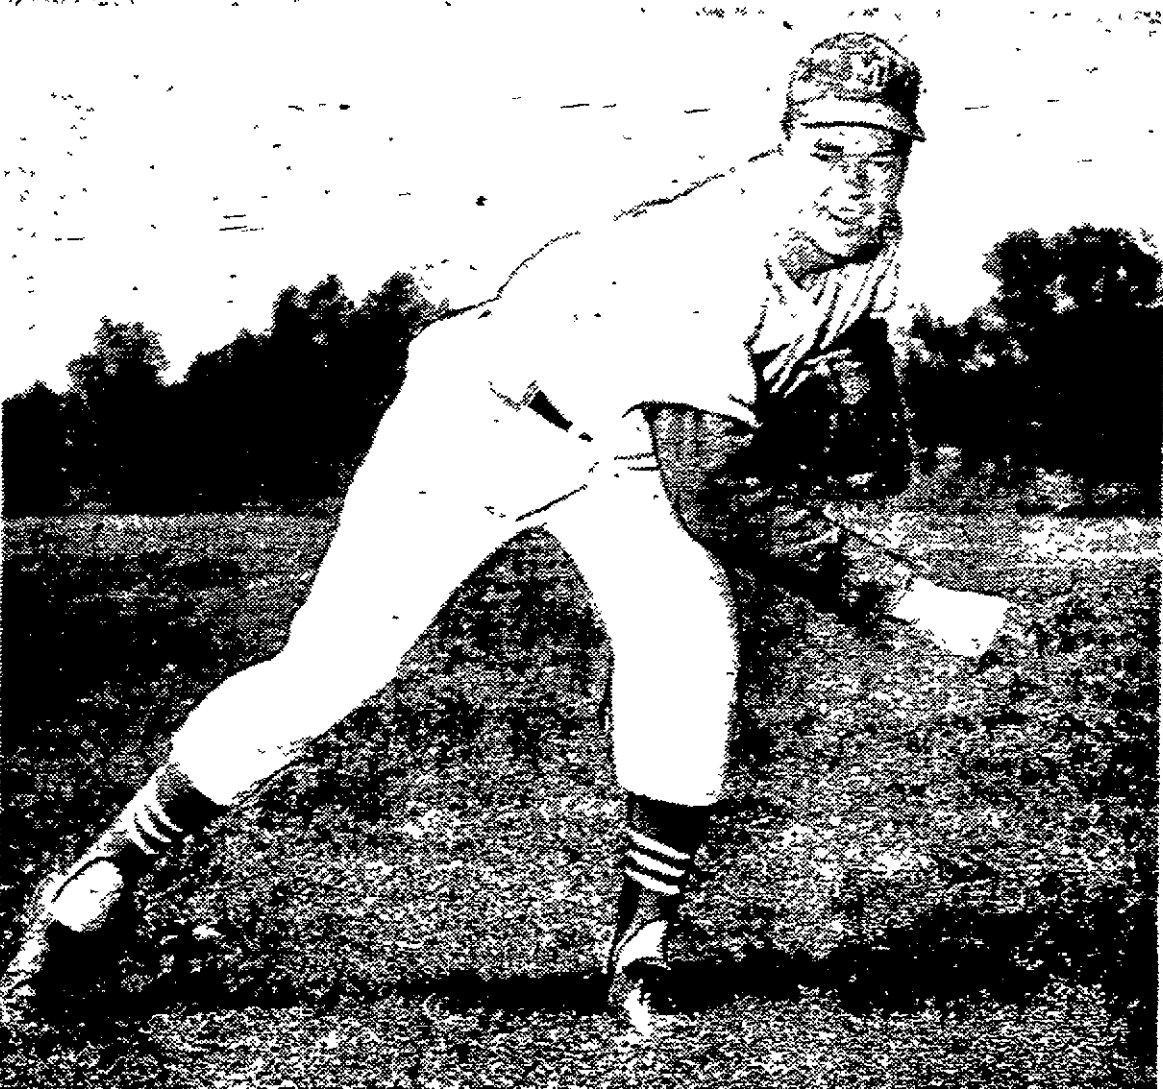

The doctor said that Bruton would return for another check-up in about a month. Bruton said the knee felt fine.

Bruton was injured last summer in an outfield collision with teammate Felix Mantilla.

Badgers Rock Spartan Quint In 66-52 Big Ten Surprise

UW Defense Shines; OSU Beats Iowa

BY JOE MOOSHIL
Of The Associated Press
Defense isn't a forgotten art in present day basketball, and one of the latest converts is Michigan State.

The Spartans, gunning for a first place tie in the Big Ten, ran into the defensive-minded Badgers from Wisconsin who pulled off an unexpected 66-52 victory.

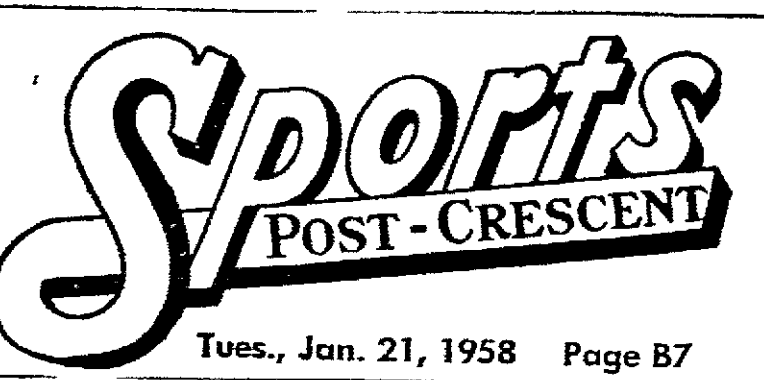

And while the Badgers were busy harassing Michigan State, Ohio State pulled back into contention with a 70-64 victory over Iowa.

Michigan State's loss left idle Michigan on top of the heap with a 3-1 record.

Credits UW Defense
Forddy Anderson, Michigan State coach, credited the Badger defense with the Wisconsin triumph. "Wisconsin played a nice defensive game," said Anderson. "This was partially responsible for our not hitting—which probably was a key factor."

Frank Howard, Ohio State's All-America candidate, proved to be too much for Iowa's sophomores. Howard collected 22 points—tops for both teams—and snatched 18 rebounds as the Buckeyes took control of the boards.

Madison — Wisconsin's unpredictable Badgers shackled Michigan State with a tight defense and upset the Spartans, 66-52, in a Big Ten basketball contest Monday night.

The defeat prevented Michigan State from equalling league-leading Michigan's record of three victories against one loss. It was only the third loss in 12 games this season for the Spartans.

The Badgers, who were so inept in their 62-47 loss at Purdue Saturday, sparked as they evened their conference record at 3-3.

Only 27 Per Cent
Wisconsin's nagging defense forced the Spartans to shoot almost continuously from the outside. The Spartans netted only 27 per cent of their field goal attempts, while the Badgers scored on 38 per cent.

The Spartans started well, taking a 12-6 lead, and they stayed ahead when Walt "Bunky" Holt led a Wisconsin rally that put the Badgers into a 17-15 lead.

The teams traded the advantage five times before Wisconsin nudged into a 23-27 halftime lead.

The Badgers warmed up in the second half, pushing their lead to 10 points and higher as the game neared its end.

With six minutes left, Wisconsin adopted a semi-stall, forcing the visitors to foul repeatedly in attempts to snatch the ball. The Badgers collected eight points on free throws alone in the closing minutes while frustrating the Spartans.

Anderegg Scores 16
There were 37 fouls called in the contest, 20 against Wisconsin. The Badgers scored on 20 of their 25 free throws, while Michigan State had only 16 of 28.

Holt led the scoring with 22 points. The star Badger guard connected on eight of 10 shots from the floor and made six of seven free throw attempts.

Michigan State's best record was 16 points by Bob Anderegg, former Monroe High school star. Anderegg scored 10 of his points on free throws.

The contest, which provided Wisconsin's eighth victory in 14 games, was the Badger's final action before semester exams.

Coach "Bud" Foster said he was "tremendously pleased" with Monday night's victory.

"The boys went out with their pre-game plan of attack and worked at it all through the game," Foster said. "It was really a team effort."

Harrison Wins Tijuana Open Veteran Pockets $2,000 for Shooting 8-Under-Par 280

Tijuana, Mexico — The professional golf nomads split forces today, some for California, others to Panama and the newly-crowned winner of the $15,000 Tijuana open E. J. "Dutch" Harrison, to Phoenix to rest up for the tournament there late this month.

Harrison who has campaigned in the tough tournament grind for about 20 of his 47 years, gave the youngsters a solid lesson in pocketing the $2,000 top money.

Playing the par 72 Tijuana did it with rounds of 71-71-69. Country club course. Harrison 69-280, or eight strokes under par for the distance.

All But Ignored
While the younger fellows were shooting 65s and 66s one day and 75s and 76s the next, Old Dutch was all but ignored when he finished his chores yesterday and sat back to see what would happen.

Druze Will Address Father-Son Meeting

MU Coach Was 'Block of Granite' During Playing Days at Fordham

John Druze, one of Fordham's famed "seven Blocks of Granite" and present Marquette university football coach will speak Sunday morning at the annual "fathers' and sons' breakfast" of the St. Mary's Catholic church.

The breakfast will be served after the 7:30 mass. The program, headlined by Druze, will begin after the breakfast.

Captain of '37 Team
Druze was born in Newark, N. J. Both his parents are of Russian descent. After a multi-sports high school career Druze entered Fordham in 1932 at the time Jim Crowley was head coach and football coach and Frank Leahy an assistant. Druze was a regular end on the team.

In his two years of head coaching at Marquette, Druze's teams have failed to produce a victory. Injuries and "thin" squads plagued the Warriors both in 1956 and '57. Druze has one year left on a 3-year contract.

Braves' Ticket Prices Will be Higher in '58

Milwaukee — Ticket prices for the 1958 Milwaukee Braves baseball games at home will be higher this year. Joseph Cairnes, the president of the world champion ball club, said Monday.

Cairnes said he was unable to announce at this time just how big the increase would be but that a new rental contract for use of the stadium was responsible. He said he still must meet with other club officials to determine the amount of the boost.

Meeting Thursday
Milwaukee county's Parks and Recreation committee has approved a 5-year contract with the Braves. The full County board will meet Thursday for final approval action on the agreement.

The agreement replaces one that expired Dec. 31 and will run for a 5-year period, and is expected to provide the county with an annual income of approximately $400,000. The figure is about $150,000 higher than under the old contract.

Milwaukee county will receive from 5 to 15 per cent.

The rental agreement also contains a formula for setting a minimum revenue guarantee for the county if the team decides to televise its baseball games.

It provides that this minimum shall be the average of the county's revenue for the two years prior to the year of televising. For example, if the Braves should televise in 1959 then the minimum would be the average of the 1957 and 1958 revenues going to the county. The formula replaces a $400,000 annual guarantee, brought up at previous negotiations, if the team should decide to televise. It was one of the main stumbling blocks to reaching an agreement.

Manufacturers Getting Ready for Series of Boat Shows Around U. S.

BY DION HENDERSON
Of the Associated Press

During the next couple of months the fellows who among them have put some 35 million Americans afloat during the past few years will be hiring halls to show what's new in small boat recreation.

And what's new is calculated not only to keep 35 million Americans interested but to keep them embarking on every navigable waterway available at the current rate. Weekend voyagers put 300,000 new boats into service last year, twice that many new outboard motors.

Industry Awestruck

The figures were drawn from industry sources who sometimes seem to be awestruck by their own mushrooming statistics. The charge of the multitudes toward water hasn't been matched since the repeal of the Volstead act, when the trend was the other way.

Part of the secret is hinted in some astonishing associated statistics that show the romance with boats fitted in with the average American's first love, the automobile. In 1947, only 3,790 trailers designed to haul small boats on the high-

Favor East in NBA 'Star Tilt'

Expect 15,000 Fans
For Tonight's Tilt
In St. Louis

St. Louis — The East is the favorite in the annual National Basketball association All-Star contest tonight but the hot St. Louis-Boston rivalry may be a factor favoring the West.

The West will have the support of a partisan St. Louis arena crowd, expected to reach 15,000. The East has an edge in height, experience and scoring power.

The coaching jobs went to the head men of the two division leaders—Boston's hot-tempered "Red" Auerbach and St. Louis' fiery Alex Hannum. Eastern starters are Boston's flashy Bob Cousy, 6-foot-8 Dolph Schayes of Syracuse, Bill Sharman and Bill Russell of Boston, and Willie Naulls of New York. In the West's starting lineup are Bob Pettit and Slater Martin of St. Louis; George Yardley of Detroit, Maurice Stokes of Cincinnati and Dick Garmaker of Minneapolis.

Mathias Stresses Need for Fitness Of U. S. Youth

Hollywood — Russia is going to win the 1960 Olympic games and another chunk of world-wide prestige unless America wakes up, says Bob Mathias, 2-time Olympic decathlon champion.

Too much television, too many cars and not enough competition in grade school and high school have taken the edge off the physical condition of America's youth, added the man who first won the world's decathlon championship as a 17-year-old high school boy in 1948.

"Another trouble is we put too much emphasis on football and baseball so that kids aren't much interested in going out for gymnastics and tumbling and wrestling, and things like that. Mathias said Monday in an interview at the movie studio where he is being groomed for an acting career.

Trade Uneven; Aircrafts Up Fractional Gains And Losses Common, Volume Moderate

New York — Aircrafts moved a bit higher in an irregular stock market early this afternoon. Trading was moderate. Gains of fractions to around a point and losses in about the same range were shown by pivotal stocks.

Rails resumed their decline from last week's spectacular advance. New York Central paced the retreat, down a point following news of its omitted dividend.

General Dynamics and Lockheed were higher and in demand after word that the navy advised congress that progress on the Polaris missile may warrant speeding up programs for submarines to launch it. Lockheed makes the Polaris and General Dynamics the submarine.

The market was uncertain after Monday's failure to pierce the barrier of the November high, an important resistance point to upward progress.

After an active opening, the pace moderated but it picked up a bit near midday as the aircrafts and some other stocks improved.

Lockheed moved up around a point and General Dynamics a major fraction.

Rises of about a point were made by International Paper and General Electric. Smaller gains were made by Youngstown Sheet, Sears Roebuck, Caterpillar, Radio Corp., International Nickel, Westinghouse Electric and Texas Co.

Illinois Central lost about a point. And Baltimore & Ohio lost fractions.

U. S. government bonds went narrowly to the upside.

Combined Police, Fire Chief Proposed

Youth Committee Also Suggests Special Officer for Juveniles

Maybe the city needs a chief of safety, a 1-man head of the fire and police departments.

Maybe it needs a special juvenile police officer who would work exclusively with juvenile cases.

These were among a host of ideas given the fire and police commission Monday night at city hall by the Appleton Community council's youth committee during an informal discussion.

Any move to name a chief of safety would require much study, George Dame, commission president said. But, he added, the commission is willing to study the matter.

William Paul Jones, youth committee chairman, said the committee will furnish the commission with results of a study it has underway.

Need For Officer?
He said a questionnaire is being sent city managers, mayors and chambers of commerce in cities which have converted to the 1-man system.

Combination of some police and firemen's duties currently is receiving publicity in some state cities. Tax dollar saving is reported by those which have made the switch, but there is a belief the idea is being tried only in small cities.

Dame and other commissioners were noncommittal on need for a special juvenile officer in the police department. The amount and nature of the caseload first must be determined, they said. They suggested at least six months of study.

Youth committee members agreed and asked the commission to do what it could to find out what kind of record-keeping the police department does in juvenile cases.

To Talk to Chief
Some records are kept, Dame said, but whether each infraction by a juvenile, no matter how small, is recorded is another matter. Commissioners will take up the matter with Chief of Police Herbert W. Kapp.

Youth committee members said they believe there is need for a special juvenile officer because of what they called lack of common philosophy between the police department, sheriff's department, judges, probation officers and others on how to handle juvenile delinquents.

Jones said it is well-known Sheriff Donald Heinritz has a get-tough policy with juvenile offenders while the city police assume a soft attitude.

Youth committee members suggested a regular noon luncheon meeting, perhaps once a month, between youth groups, Kapp and Heinritz as a means of reaching some common ground.

Commissioner Helm Hussner said rather than let the two men talk with each other, it might be better to have a social welfare professional, preferably an outsider, talk to them.

Police Undermanned
The two groups seemed agreed, too, that the present police department is undermanned. Commissioner James R. Joyce said the 4-man detective bureau now spends about 60 per cent of its time on juvenile cases and needs at least two more field men.

But, commissioners said, they believe Chief Kapp is right in saying the juvenile problem is no greater than it ever was.

Commissioners stressed there is little they can do to increase personnel. That's the city council's job. The commission, Joyce explained, is empowered to hire, fire and promote policemen and firemen and nothing more.

As a matter of practical operation, however, the commission does indirectly guide some other policies in both departments, he said.

Commissioners said they had

Oneida Man Gets Year in Jail for Furnishing Beer

William V. Reed, 23, Oneida, was sentenced to a year in the county jail today for contributing to the delinquency of five minors, four of whom are on probation from the state school for boys in Waukesha.

Reed was released from the Brown county jail several months ago where he served nine months on the same charge.

Municipal Judge Oscar J. Schmiede remarked to Reed, "You get out of jail and do the same thing right away. One year."

Reed was arrested by Outagamie sheriff's Lt. Jack Frenz and admitted buying beer and wine for the minors the night of Dec. 31.

The youths had no pump for a keg of beer, so they poured it into a milk can and drank from dippers, Frenz said.

Reed also was fined $10 for driving without a driver's license and $10 for no registration on his car. Both fines are to run concurrent with the jail term.

Harry Hoffman, 26, Chicago, told the court that he and his wife were insulted by Bauers and he was challenged to a fight. He said Bauers followed him outside where a fight started. Charges of disorderly conduct against Hoffman were dismissed.

Bauer outweighs Hoffman by about 70 pounds.

Mrs. Marie Van Handel, 525 1/2 W. College avenue, a cook at a nearby restaurant, said that Bauer started arguments with several patrons in the restaurant.

Hoffman received a gash in his neck during the fight. Bauer was unharmed and fled when police approached.

heard nothing of the "Youth in Trouble" study conducted several years ago. They explained that the youth committee was the first citizen group to meet with them in more than 20 years.

Youth committee members underscored that they requested the meeting simply to seek information. Other meetings, they said, will be scheduled with the school board, county officers and others in the youth field.

Predict 3 to 5 Inches of New Snow in Wisconsin

The season's worst snow storm virtually paralyzed Kansas City and large sections of Missouri and Kansas today, the Associated Press reported.

Me a while the predicted snow for the Fox Cities seemed to be delayed. Today's forecast calls for heavy snow in the southeast and extreme south portions of Wisconsin.

Snow depths in the border areas of Kansas and Missouri ranged from six to 14 inches and the blizzard was continuing to drive additional cover. Winds whipped up drifts that blocked major highways and made side roads and many city streets impassable.

From Colorado, Wyoming and New Mexico came reports of a mass of cold, dry air that had dropped temperatures to some of the lowest marks of the winter. This frigid blast was expected to move eastward to night as the snow diminished.

10 Inches Deep In Kansas City where the snow cover was 10 inches at 9 a.m. the wind was blowing at 15 miles an hour with gusts up to 24. Blowing snow and fog obscured visibility and added to traffic hazards. Thousands of workers were late to work and traffic arteries were snarled with stranded vehicles. Schools in many areas were ordered closed.

Snow Skirts State Back in Wisconsin, the predicted snowstorm merely skirted the southern edge of the state Monday, but heavy snow and strong wind still threatened the southeastern part of the state today.

The forecast calls for snow over most of the south part this afternoon, spreading into the north tonight, with new snow accumulations of three to five inches likely over the southeast and extreme south late tonight. The snow will diminish to snow flurries tonight. Wednesday will be cloudy with snow flurries likely and cold. The low tonight will be from 5 to 14 above in the northwest and in the upper 20s in the southeast. The high Wednesday will be from 18 to 25.

Appleton had a low of 14 overnight, after a high of 33 Monday. The temperature at 11:10 this morning was 24, with the wind from the east at 16 miles an hour.

New snow caused somewhat slippery driving conditions in the Milwaukee, Racine, Lake Geneva and Kenosha areas today, the state highway commission reported. Elsewhere roads were generally clear.

WV's Varsity-Alumni Game Slated for New Packer Stadium

Green Bay — The University of Wisconsin's second annual varsity - alumni football game will probably be played in the new Green Bay Packer stadium May 17.

The UW's Camp Randall stadium will be unavailable this year because of a remodeling project.

The Packer stadium commission has already given its verbal okay to UW Athletic Director Irv Williamson and is expected to approve the formal request. The UW athletic board won't act officially on the transfer request until the end of this month.

Athletics Help Prison Inmates Adjust Socially

Organized athletics help prison inmates take an important step toward adjustment to society. Wilfred Baye, director of athletics at the state reformatory, told members of the Appleton Optimist club Monday.

Baye reviewed the athletic program at the reformatory, noting that inmates maintain the program. Organized athletics include basketball, baseball, softball and volleyball.

"Athletics — combined with our vocational and educational program — go a long way toward making a man a useful member of society when he leaves the prison," Baye stated.

Competitive sports at the reformatory are conducted in the same way as at a school. Baye said. Inmates are chosen for "varsity" competition on basis of ability and good behavior.

"Most of the men are thorough individualists," Baye said, "and sports competition teaches team spirit and offers them a chance to prove they can get along with other people."

Baye said problems common to most inmates are lack of family background and insufficient religious training. He declared that only about 170 of the institution's 600 inmates attend church services.

He noted unofficial figures show from 80 to 90 per cent of the inmates released have no further crime record.

W. D. McQuire, Neenah, long range analysis department manager for the Kimberly-

Clark corporation, will discuss long range planning when the Northern Wisconsin chapter of the National Association of Accountants meets at the Appleton Elks club tonight.

The dinner meeting will follow a board of directors session at 4:30 this afternoon.

McQuire is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin school of commerce. Prior to his appointment as long range analysis manager he served as an assistant to the budget coordinator at K-C for ten years.

New Self-Help Bill Proposed

Michigan Lawmaker Introduces Dairy Law Similar to Laird's

Washington — Rep. Knox, R-Mich., announced today his support of a proposed self-help dairy price program designed to boost prices through assessments of milk producers.

At the same time, Knox attacked what he termed Secretary of Agriculture Benson's "negative attitude in failing to endorse a new and improved dairy program."

Knox said he would introduce a dairy stabilization program similar to the one proposed last week by Rep. Laird, R-Wis., and endorsed by other dairy state Republican congressmen.

The program has been endorsed by the National Grange, the National Milk Producers' Federation, the National Farmers' Union and the National Conference of Commodity Organizations, Knox said.

If approved by congress, the plan would go before a referendum of milk producers Sept. 8 to decide whether it would go into effect April 1, 1959.

Knox urged Benson to keep the present dairy support level at 83 per cent until the fate of the new program is decided.

Legislators Named to Civil War Committee

Two legislators from the Fox Cities area have been appointed to the legislative council's Civil war centennial planning committee. They are Sen. Gerald Lorge, Bear Creek, and Rep. Henry Peters, route 1, Menasha.

Mathias Verkuilen, 609 E. Kimberly avenue, Kimberly, is one of seven directors reelected by the State Central Credit union at its annual meeting in Wauwatosa.

Half the Battle Is With Form, Pick One That Fits Your Income

BY G. K. HODENFIELD
AP Newsfeatures Writer

When you have all the facts and figures collected on your 1957 income and deductions, the next step is to decide which form to use in filing your tax return.

There are two basic forms available—the 1040 and the 1040A. The 1040 can be used as a short form, using only page send along a check for the amount—you can't wait for a bill.

The gimmick on this easy, almost painless, way of filing your return is that not everyone is eligible to use it, and you may not want to use it even if you can.

As an Example

For instance, your total income must not be more than $4,999.99. If it's a joint return, the combined income of husband and wife must not exceed $4,999.99. This income must consist mainly of salaries or wages from which income taxes have been withheld. Not more than $100 can be in other wages, dividends or interest.

You can't use the 1040A if you had other types of income such as annuities, rent receipts, royalties, pension payments, business profits, professional earnings, security transactions, farming income, or earnings as a participant in partnerships, estates and trusts.

And you can't use this form if you want to itemize your deductions or deduct your business-connected expenses (such as travelling costs) or "sick pay." Nor can you use it if you claim the special "head of household" status.

Short, Long 1040

If you can't use 1040A, or don't want to, you'll next have to decide how many pages of the 1040 you should fill out.

Form 1040 is printed on pages about the size of a large letterhead. There are four pages, but the average taxpayer needs worry only about pages 1 and 2.

If your adjusted gross income is not more than $4,999.99, you may be able to get by with page 1 only. Your adjusted gross income is what's left after you've deducted your business expenses and sick pay exclusions. Thus, you can have a total income of $5,000 or more, and still use just page 1 if those deductions bring the adjusted gross below the $5,000 mark.

On this form, too, there are certain restrictions. You can get by using just page 1 if you are single with no dependents to claim as exemptions, or if you are married and claim exemptions only for your wife and children. And to use the first page only you must accept the standard 10 per cent deduction, just as on the 1040A.

If your adjusted gross income is $5,000 or more, you have no choice. You must use the longer form of 1040, which means pages 1 and 2, and possibly 3 and 4.

More Work

This calls for a bit more work, but there are a number of special benefits you can have other dependents besides claim. For instance, if you your wife and children—say a niece or nephew, etc.—and you are qualified to claim them as exemptions, you can list them on page 2 and thus reduce your tax.

Also on page 2 you can itemize your deductions for interest paid, charity, medical expenses, etc., and this may result in a substantial saving to you.

Pages 3 and 4 are for use in reporting income from dividends, interest, rents and royalties, and from partnerships, estates, trusts or other sources.

Remember, the first $50 of dividend income—$100 if the stock is jointly owned with your wife—is tax free.

The Instructions

If you use the short form of 1040, or page 1 only, a table on the back of the instruction book will tell you your tax liability according to your marital status, the number of your exemptions and the size of your adjusted gross income.

If you use the long form you get the help of a table, but you still have to do the arithmetic of working out your own tax.

By looking over your income figures you should now be able to select the proper form to use this year in filing your tax return. The next article will deal with the various classes of returns.

Gen. Twining Should Receive Special Medal

Military Leaders Face Dilemma When Talking to Congress

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—There ought to be a new medal pinned on the chest of Gen. Nathan F. Twining, former chief of staff of the U.S. Air Force and now chairman of the joint chiefs of staff—a medal for courageous expression and distinction in the face of the dilemma of every general of admiral who testifies before a congressional committee—how to give needed information without himself becoming involved in the controversies of the civilian branch of the government.

Twining the other day was discussing before the senate subcommittee on military preparedness the tendency of the interrogators to demand opinions on the merits of the military budget and was decrying the effort to force the military officers to appraise the acts of civilian officials. He said: "To take the president's final (budget) decision and turn it back at them (military chiefs) and say: 'Is this adequate?'—I think that ought to be reconsidered because it puts the military man in a pretty tough seat... if he says it is inadequate, he just, I think, is approaching insubordination; and if he says it is adequate, he has more or less perjured himself."

Certainly congress is entitled to every bit of information on military matters that it is possible for the executive branch of the government to give without violating security—and even confidential data can be furnished in many instances in executive session. But Twining is 100 per cent right when he objects to the procedure of committees in congress in seeking to get, through the testimony of military officers, information that would reflect on the civilian officials who are the immediate superiors of these same military commanders.

There is, of course, nothing wrong in trying to elicit information that exposes incompetence on the part of the civilian officials, but there is a right and a wrong way to handle military officers in these ticklish matters.

Present Views

Thus, for instance, every chief of an armed service is usually asked to present his views in writing to the head of his service—the secretary for air, or the secretary of the army or the secretary of the navy. These documents cover every conceivable phase of the problem of military preparedness. Requests for appropriations are matters of record inside every department. If congressional committees want this information, they can ask for a particular document from the civilian secretaries and can raise cain with them if it is not forthcoming. But to cross-exposed their requests and in their decisions on the budget. The budget bureau officials tempt to use them as a means with their "minimum requirements." It is up to the civilian rogation by the committees of bad judgment or incompetence secretary who unwisely pares congress. Why, therefore, put the military men on the spot and make them appear to be insubordinate? The answer is that the congressional committees think the public will be impressed by natural because they think of available for testimony. All the military men as disinterested witnesses. But the truth is that some of them in the past have been forced to become tactful good or bad avoiders of the truth and obnoxious defenders of the political San Jose, Calif. —A frustrated burglar went bank-fishing here and walked home with at least $1,893.97. Detective Barton L. Collins said the burglar apparently angled through a deposit slot and got some of the contents of the safe. The $1,893.97 was the amount the drug company envelope had held.

Ford Autos Tested on Round the World Drive

Major Style Changes, New Engines
Featured; Appearance Also Modified

The 1958 Ford car, tested in a rugged round-the-world trip, incorporates major styling changes with a new family of engines, new transmission, and air suspension.

In appearance, the 1958 Ford is new from dual safety headlamps to twin safety taillights. Almost all body sheet metal has been recontoured. Styling features include an anodized aluminum honeycomb grille protected by a massive wraparound bumper designed to eliminate the need for bumper guards, low hood lines, and redesigned roof with slip-stream grooves. The new rear end treatment features a V contoured trunk lid housing the inboard sections of the twin pod oval taillights. New engines feature completely machined, wedge-type combustion chambers, larger, cooler running valves, new carburetion and exhaust porting and direct flow intake for peak performance at all engine speeds.

Standard on V-8—A 332-cubic-inch displacement engine is the standard V-8 on the Fairlane 500 and station wagon series and is available as an extra cost option in the Fairlane and Custom 300 series. The 332-cubic inch engine is an extra high performance option on all Fords except the Fairlane and Custom 300. In addition, Ford's overhead valve six is available for most models, and the 292 cubic inch V-8 is the standard V-8 for the Fairlane and Custom 300 series.

Also new for 1958 is transmission which gives the owner tailor made drive selections. It gives the option of smooth upshifting through all three gear speeds, a low gear selection for unusual conditions, and a 2-speed combination for travel over slippery roads. Two improved transmissions, as well as conventional and overdrive, are available.

Air suspension, optional for Fairlanes, Fairlane 500's and station wagons equipped with V-8 interceptor engines and automatic transmissions, keeps the car level at a constant height regardless of load conditions for optimum springing and a "boulevard ride."

Compressed Air
Compressed air from an air pump and tank is valved into four air domes which replace conventional steel springs. Switches on the car's doors operate the valves to quickly readjust height and balance when passengers enter or alight. Other valves make slower adjustments for articles placed in the trunk.

Ford also continues its policy of improving safety packaging

Truck Taxes in '57 Total $2.25 Billion

Motor Transport Industries Employ 1 Person in 7

Motor transport industries account for one out of every seven jobs in the United States, according to the latest tabulations of an automobile manufacturers association.

More than 10.3 million now are employed in motor vehicle and parts manufacture, production and handling of crude and refined petroleum, selling and servicing motor vehicles, making or maintaining roads and truck and bus transportation.

The 10.3 million figure does, year.

not include the many persons employed in making automotive storage batteries, certain automotive stampings, electrical equipment and raw materials, or those engaged in the insurance and financing businesses serving highway transportation. Untold numbers of additional jobs exist as an indirect result of motor vehicle travel.

Big Difference In Truck Taxes

The average farm pick-up truck pays $47 in state taxes. At the other extreme, an average 5-axle diesel truck combination doing contract hauling pays $2,813 in state taxes each year.

Auto Totals Outgrow U. S. Population

Motor vehicle registrations in America during the past decade have outgrown the population almost three to one.

While the U. S. population has increased about 15 per cent in the 10 years, car and truck registrations have gone up 43 per cent.

The number of people in the country per motor vehicle has gone up from four to about 2.5. There are about 165 million motor vehicles in the world, to 4,975.

some 67 million of which are in the U. S. The ratio of world population to world motor vehicle registrations is one to 28. With less than 6 per cent of the world's area and slightly more than 6 per cent of its population, the U. S. has almost 70 per cent of the world's passenger cars and 45.5 per cent of the world's trucks.

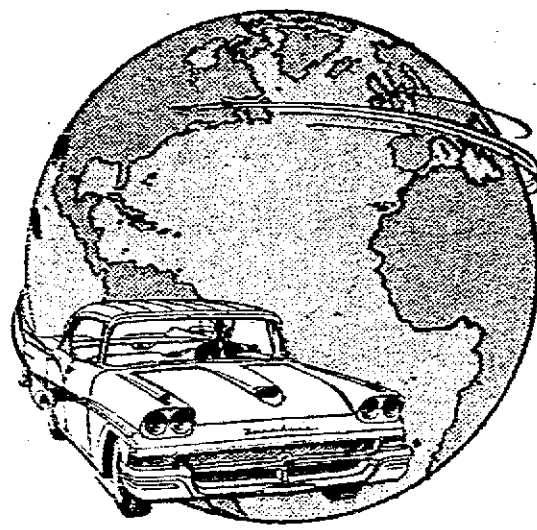

Great Britain is second to the United States in motor vehicle registrations, with about 5.5 million—one vehicle per 10 persons in the population. Other vehicle population ratios throughout the world: France, 1 to 11; the Netherlands, 1 to 11; Argentina, 1 to 33; Hungary, 1 to 230; Roumania, 1 to 230; Russia, 1 to 70; China, 1 to 70.

10 Resolutions To Promote Safe Driving

A late set of New Year's resolutions, always good, are suggested by an oil company representative who believes safe driving will help make the year 1958 a happy one. Here they are:
Obey posted speed limits—in built-up areas and on the highway.
Keep in the right lane except when passing.
Check the side-view mirror before pulling out to pass.
Use hand or blinker signals before turning.
Allow plenty of room between your car and the car ahead.
Stop at an intersection when the traffic light is on yellow.
Use emergency repair areas—or pull completely off the road—to fix a flat tire, or whatever.
Carry a good spare tire—always.
Give the other fellow motorist and pedestrian the right of way.
Keep your car in top-notch operating condition.

Auto Industry Depends on Public Choice, Says Official

By George W. Romney
President Automobile Manufacturers Assn.

The motor vehicle manufacturers join their dealers in welcoming you to attend the Valley Fair Automobile show with the hope that you may be as pleased by it, and by the new models on display, as we are.

The sincerity of our welcome comes from the knowledge that the automobile industry is a creature of the people's choice. As manufacturers or as dealers, we stand or fall according to whether or not our products are what the public wants.

Since the beginning of the century we have produced more than 160 million motor vehicles of which more than 67 million are still in use.

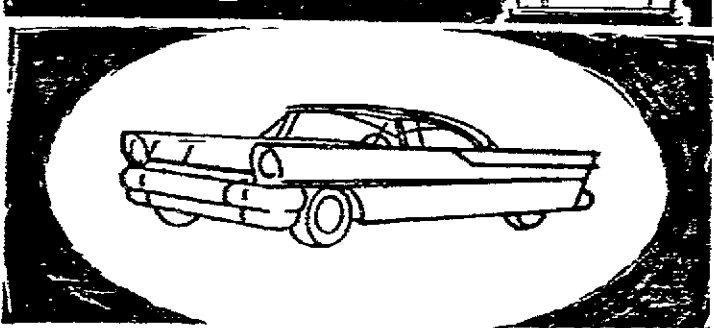

Who are the people who have done the choosing?

The latest tabulations show that 77 per cent of the American people 10 years old or older now live in households in which automobiles are owned.

Car Per Family

Expressed another way, we now have in America one passenger car for every 3.4 persons, or one per family. In other terms, we are now increasing the numbers of licensed drivers at a greater rate than that of population. From 1955 to 1956, while the population of the United States increased by about 2-1/2 million persons, the number of choice."

Buick Adds New Car to Prestige Series

Firm Has More Autos in High Price Classification

Buick's 1958 line represents "a new high in automotive engineering," according to Edward T. Ragsdale, general manager of Buick and vice president of General Motors.

Topping the new line is the luxurious Limited series, which gives Buick greater representation in the prestige car class. The other series are the Roadmaster, Super, Century and Special.

"This is the start of a new era for Buick," Ragsdale said.

"Advanced ideas on transmission, ride and brakes have been put into this line of cars which has been restyled from front to rear."

"Styling changes are capped by the new grille, which is a complete departure from the industry's traditional front end design, and include chrome-trimmed ribbed aluminum rear fender panels and redesigned taillight housings."

"This is the second major Buick engineering achievement we have made in the past two years and with fine flight pitch transmission it we have achieved a new high in which the stator vanes operate on the same principle as an airplane propeller. The vanes, to 218 square inches. Front squares set in four rows extend across the entire front of the car. The fender line has low to high angle depending on how far the throttle is depressed.

The new air-ride suspension, a 364-cubic inch high compression V-8 engine powers all on four columns of air, controls 1958 Buicks. The Special engine is equipped with 2-barrel carburetors and the four other series with 4-barrel carburetors.

Heading the list of exclusive Buick engineering achievements for 1958 is the triple road regardless of load, other series with 4-barrel carburetors.

The Nimble Century, is given new agility in 1958 with Buick's new, improved variable pitch transmission, which is standard equipment. Mounted on a 122-inch wheelbase, the Century is powered by a 364-cubic inch V-8 engine with 4-barrel carburetor and is equipped with air-cooled aluminum brakes on the front wheels. The new air-ride suspension and flight pitch transmission are optional on the Century.

One of the Most Distinctive features of the 1958 Cadillac—as shown on this Coupe de Ville—is the entirely new front end. It includes a newly-designed grille, wider and longer fenders, four headlights and a longer hood.

1958 Cadillac Has All-Over Luxury Look

New Fin Style Features Design of This Year's Model

The 1958 Cadillac has a new look of luxury, both inside and out.

Accounting for this 1958 look are a new "going away" tail fin, the four headlamp system, sweeping low lines, a dramatically different over-all profile and the finest interiors ever offered by Cadillac.

Included in the 12 models is a new extended deck sedan in the popular 62 Series.

The big engineering news for Cadillac in 1958 are suspension advances. These advances result in better and softer ride and improved control and handling.

The basic factor in the improved suspension is the use of 4-link rear suspension on all models. By using this new linkage, the Cadillac is adaptable to either coil spring suspension, which is standard, or optional air suspension.

Style-wise, Cadillac presents a long, low sleek appearance. Responsible for this broad-shouldered, longer look are the unique new grille which is inset with jewel-like protrusions, a longer hood, wider and longer fenders, the addition of rear ventipane windows in 4-door models and a new tail fin.

Distinctive Style
Again this year the Eldorado Biarritz convertible and Eldorado Seville Coupe retain their own distinctive styling, inside and out. The exterior differences result from the inboard fin treatment of the rear quarter panel and the wrap-around 3-section bumper. A new bumper is added to the 1958 Eldorados and vertical molding strips are included between the outer bumper sections and the middle portion which houses the license plate.

Several distinctive refinements

Car Industries Spent $1.3 Billion in '57

U.S. motor vehicle and parts manufacturers spent an estimated $1.3 billion on new plants and equipment in 1957.

Since World War II, the industry has spent a total of 11 billion dollars on expansion and modernization. Capital expenditures climbed steadily from $49 million in 1949 to a peak of 1.8 billion in 1956.

Three Out of Four Cars Have Radios

Seventy-five per cent of the cars on the road have radios, 47 per cent have automatic transmissions, 14 per cent have power brakes, and 12 per cent have power steering.

ments are made to the Fleetwood 60 Special Sedan for 1958.

Among the exterior features which distinguish this model is an extruded aluminum shield across the lower rear quarter panel. The grooved effect of this molding is carried around to the rear deck also where it runs between the two back-up lights inset in the deck.

Twenty-four exterior colors are available on all models other than the Eldorado, Brougham. Five of these are long-life, high-lustre acrylic paints which are standard with the Eldorado Biarritz and Eldorado Seville and available as options on other models. The Brougham has 15 distinctive acrylic colors of its own.

Big Year
Engineering-wise, 1958 is another big year for Cadillac in the advancement of suspension, ride and handling. These are factors which reflect directly in comfort, safety and ease of operation to the owners. The big item is the development of four-link rear suspension as standard equipment. This linkage was introduced on the Eldorado Brougham. It provides better control on rough roads and features a high roll center which results in better cornering and increased stability.

To go with the new linkage, coil springs are featured at each rear wheel. These coil springs eliminate the friction variable of leaf springs.

This air suspension system features air springs at each wheel and a leveling system which maintains the car at a constant height regardless of road or load conditions.

Several refinements and changes are included in Cadillac's 1958 high compression V-8 engine. Two engines are available, a 335 horsepower version, standard in the Eldorados, and a 310 horsepower engine in the remainder of the line. The 335 horsepower "Q" engine is available as a customer option in the remainder of the line. It utilizes three two-barrel carburetors. Compression ratio is increased to 10.25 to 1 as a result of a redesigned combustion chamber.

Another mechanical improvement is the use of a larger air conditioning compressor. With the new compressor a larger condenser and modified radiator are included. The driver has the choice of using recirculated air for quicker cool down.

35 Per Cent Choose Tubeless Tires

Tubeless tires are now used on 35 per cent of the cars on the road. Twenty per cent of all cars are equipped with snow tires during the winter months.

Packard Firm Completes Line Of 1958 Cars

Maximum Space Provides Comfort, Ease in Driving

The new and expanded line of 1958 Packard automobiles—lower, longer, and with the forward-sloping hood design of European Grand Prix winners—will start appearing in dealer showrooms.

Described as the "most original car on the American road," the new 2-door hardtop, the spacious 4-door sedan and the station wagon designed for town and country living, join the popular Packard Hawk—introduced last November—to complete the Packard line for 1958.

Luxurious space and generous seats provide maximum leg and head-room and comfort for the three new Packards. Beautiful upholstery is carried to the exterior of these cars.

Everything for passenger and driver convenience is provided: padded armrests, ash trays, coat hooks, cigarette lighter, and an electric clock.

Finned Drums
Finned drums on the power brakes virtually eliminate dangerous brake fade and the automatic transmission provides the complete ease of automatic no-clutch control of up-shifting and down-shifting.

The silhouette of the new Packards is long graceful, and low—emphasized by the distinctive hood design—and flows dramatically to the rear slender fins.

The new Packards are power-boosted by the Packard 289, a V-8 overhead valve engine creating 225 horsepower at 4,500 revolutions per minute and a torque thrust of 305 foot-pounds at 3,000 r.p.m. Four-barrel carburetion is standard.

Packard's new luxury-level ride for 1958 brings a new ease to driving. Also, the new Packard 4-door station wagon offers luxurious interiors and ample cargo space as well as passenger third seat can be folded away out of sight when space is desired for packages or other cargo.

Dual headlights, housed in distinctive jet-type nacelles, are positioned for maximum effort and can be located for varying distances.

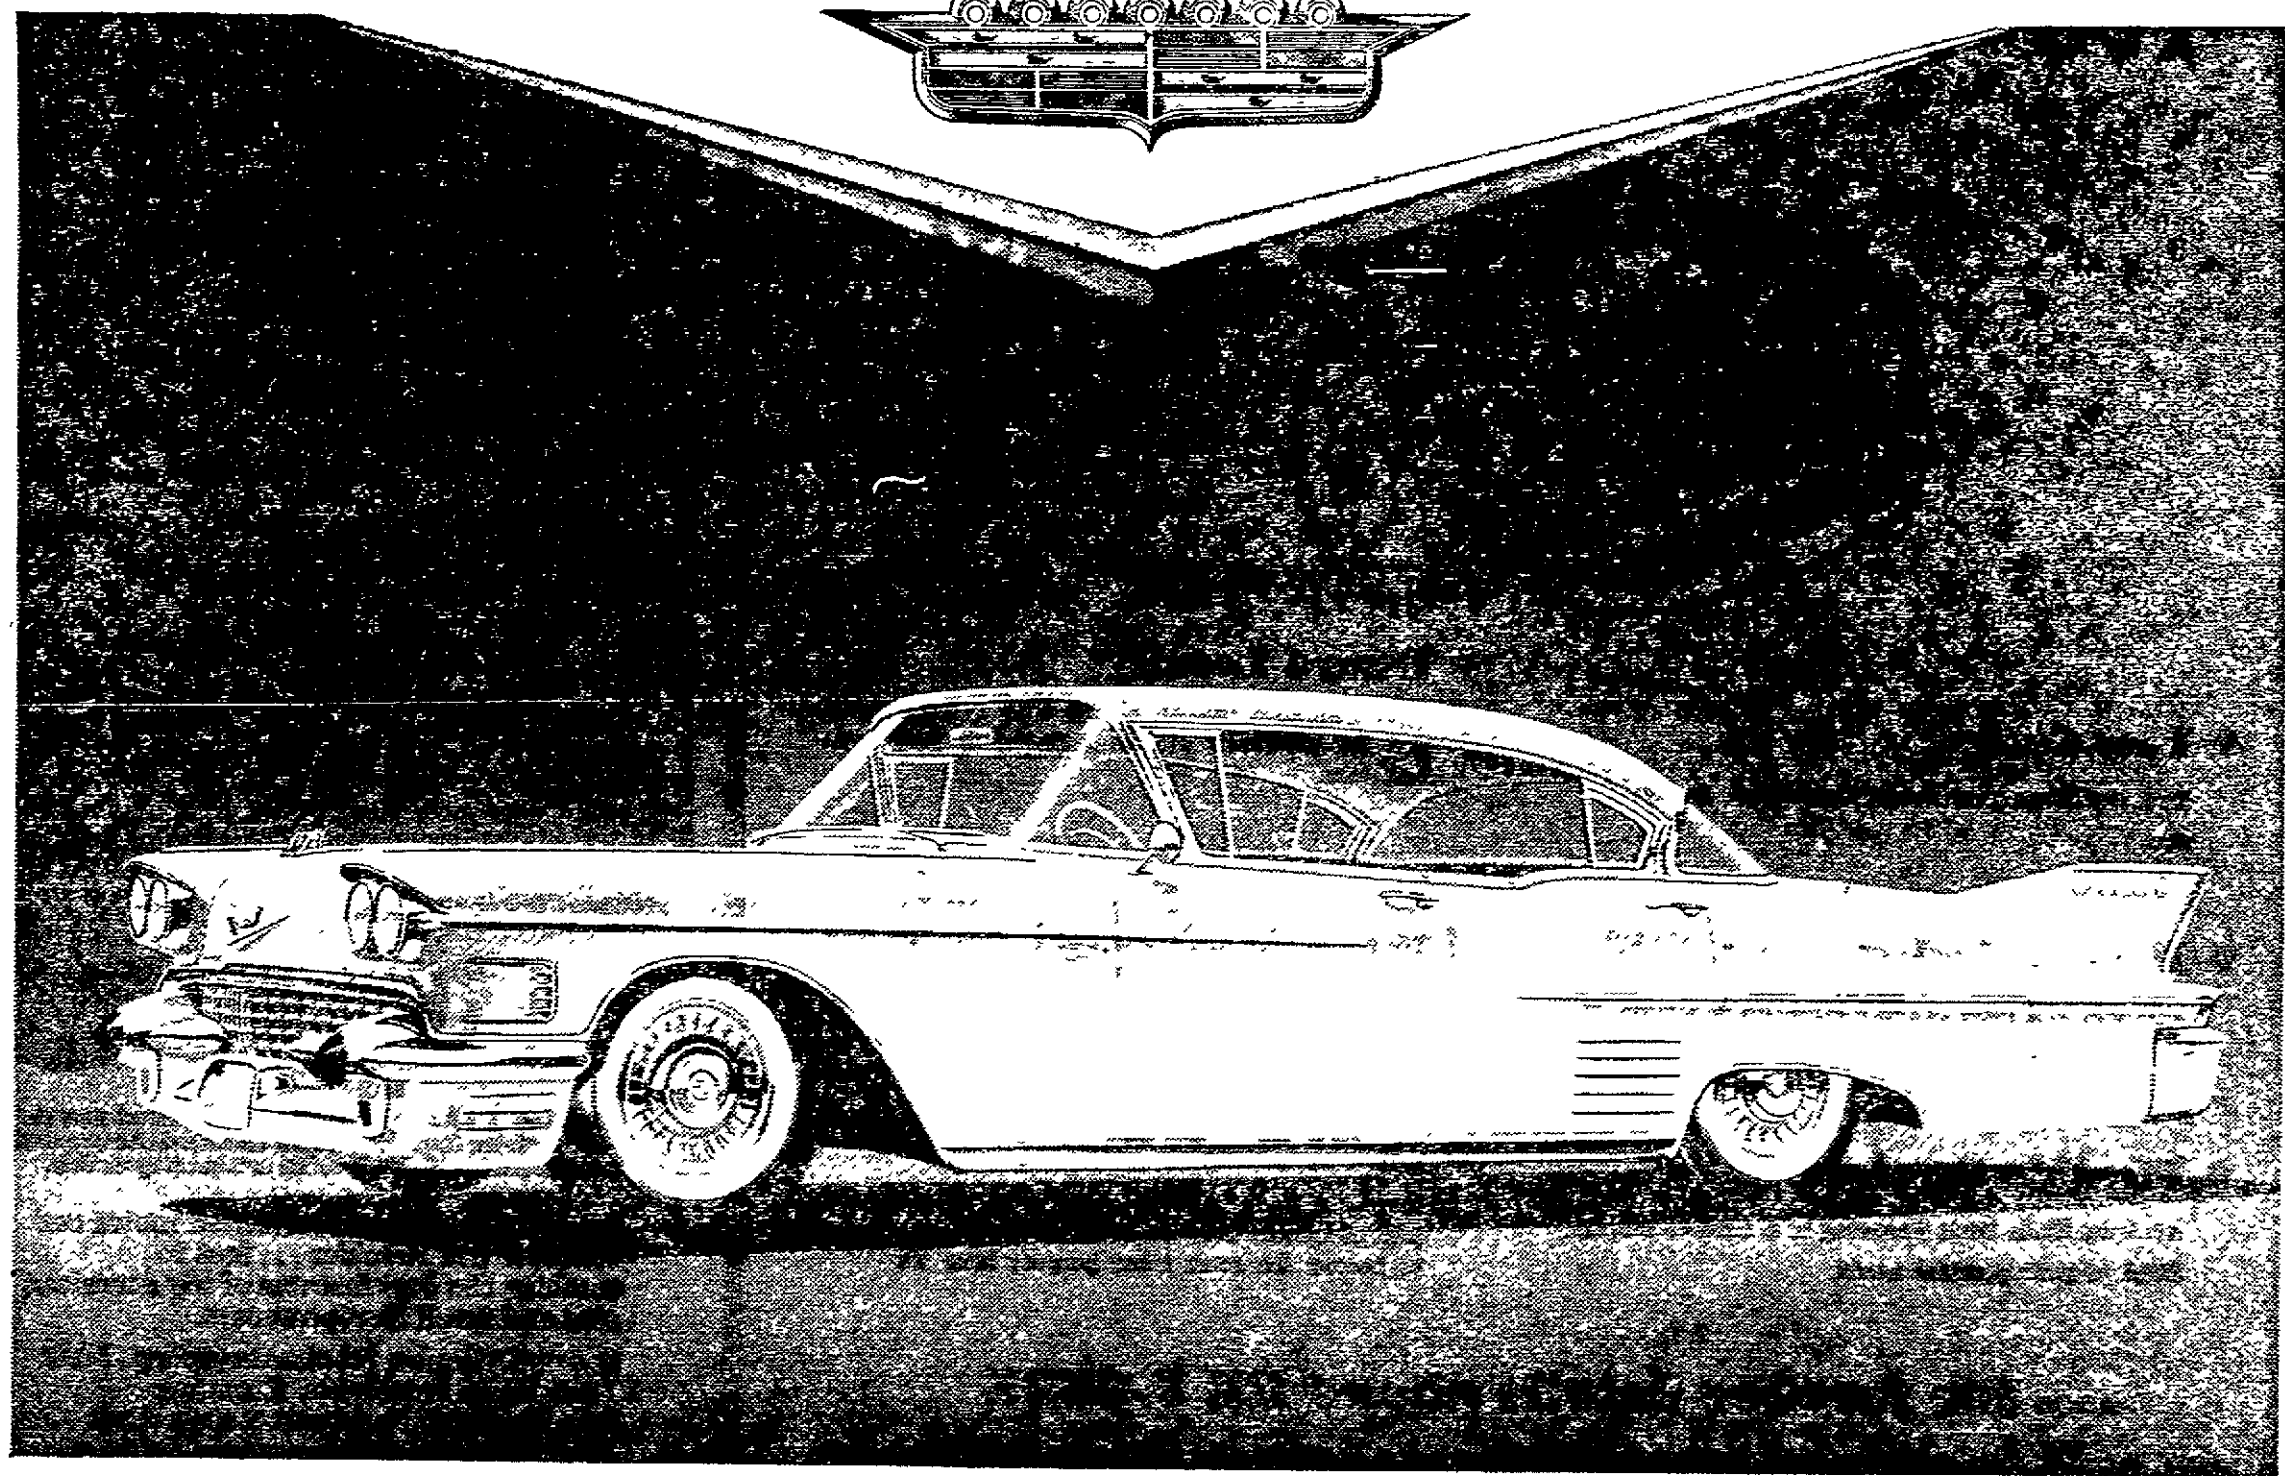

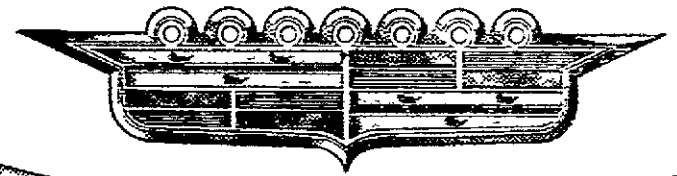

The New 1958 Packard 4-Door sedan combines a long, low silhouette, emphasized by the long, forward sloping hood, with tasteful interior fabrics which may be chosen almost to custom design. A long, graceful sweep of gold anodized aluminum accentuates the flowing lines. Power brakes and automatic transmission are standard equipment on all Packards. Luxury leather interior is standard on the Packard Hawk.

standard equipment on the without hazardous groping. All optional features are available on the 1958 Packards. The large upswept tail and Power steering, power windows, and seats add ease to easy to read. All switches and brake lights contribute to safe driving. Air conditioning also is available.

1958 Dodge Car Has All-New Engine Design

Ram Fire V-8 Is Standard on Most Autos Built by Firm

An all-new engine, designed for top performance and improved fuel economy, has been teamed with swept-wing styling to keynote the 1958 line of Dodge passenger cars. The engine is a powerful 295 h.p. Ram Fire V-8.

Combining light weight, compactness, quiet operation and economy, the Ram Fire V-8 is standard on all Custom Royal and station wagon models. It also is available in a slightly larger version with the D-500 engine package offered on all Dodge Eights.

Setting the styling pace on all 1958 Dodge cars is the bold new front end and grille design.

Dual Lights
Dual headlights, standard on all models, are mounted in side-by-side fashion under overhanging front fender hoods, while the parking lights are housed in circular "bombs" at either side of the stainless steel grille.

Engineered to provide a better lighting pattern for safer night driving, each beam of the dual headlights has a specific purpose.

The inner lamps are designed exclusively for high beam operation, while the outer lamps provide the low beam and fill-in light for the "brights".

The resulting light covers more of the right-hand side of the road, and extends farther ahead on the highway.

Joining the Ram Fire V-8 engine and new front end design as noteworthy features of the 1958 Dodge is the huge "picture" windshield, standard equipment on all convertible and hardtop models.

Safety Package
"Safety firsts" on the 1958 Dodge include a safety package offered this year for the first time.

Constant control power steering, power brakes, padded dashboard and padded sun visors comprise the single safety package, while other safety features include safety door latches and handles, and an independent emergency brake system—an exclusive in the medium price field.

Mechanical pushbutton controls, located to the left of the steering wheel and away from accidental contact by passengers, provide a further safety advance.

Plymouth Highlights Engineering Progress

New Differential, Power Steering In 1958 Models

Detroit — Advanced mechanical features on the 1958 line of Plymouth cars are designed to benefit driver and occupants in the all-important areas of safety, security and comfort.

Highlighting engineering innovations on the new Plymouth are a completely new power steering unit, a new differential, dual headlights and improved air-conditioning.

A completely new power steering unit provides the most desirable combination of steering characteristics: less parking effort than ever before plus a greater sense of firmness and stability in highway driving.

Available at extra cost on all Plymouth models, constant control power steering, like its predecessor, coaxial power steering, affords full-time operation and ease of maneuvering. The new unit, however, is simpler in design, only half the length of the previous unit, and is located entirely within the engine compartment.

The new differential, available as special equipment, actually directs power to the rear wheel having the greater traction and thereby utilizes the power usually lost on a spinning wheel with a conventional differential.

Dual headlights are standard equipment on all models in the 1958 Plymouth line.

The function of the inner lamps is exclusively for high beam operation. The outer features, available for the first time on 1958 cars, are the sure grip differential and constant beam. The triangular parking light and turn signal is nestled between and above the dual lamp lenses.

Air conditioned 1958 Plymouth cars contain a more powerful blower motor and a new be offered as standard equipment. Located at lap level and just riding and handling character of the car. Providing the most comfortable board, the new unit reduces rect cool, dehumidified air to front-end dip when braking to a even further the effort required the left or right, for controlled stop and gives "flat" cornering ability. Road shock and noise is combined with its heating mum.

High-Flung Fins, Familiar Trademark of the Plymouth, are accented for 1958 by new 2-tone styling effect shown above on the Plymouth Belvedere 2-door hardtop. The styling, drawn from the 1957 Plymouth Fury, is available on all 1958 Belvedere and sport suburban models, with the contrasting insert offered either in anodized aluminum or in a harmonizing body color.

"Seems that everyone's ordering new Plymouths"

You'll find plenty of good reasons why so many people are deserting old favorites for the new Plymouth—Plymouth's satin-smooth Torsion-Aire Ride, Silver Dart Styling and, optional at low cost, Golden Commando V-8 engine that definitely stamps today's Plymouth ahead for keeps.

Star of the Forward Look... Star of the Auto Show... Plymouth

HERE ARE SOME THINGS TO LOOK FOR when you size up the 1958 cars at the Auto Show. We suggest you start with a styling comparison because that's very important to you. Notice that while some of the cars are nearly as low as the Swept-Wing 58, it has been achieved by sacrificing windshield area. Check that. Then get into the driver's seat. See if the new driving position and the added visibility of Swept-Wing 58 don't give you a greater sense of comfort and confidence than other cars in Dodge's field. Most important, arrange to get a new Dodge on the road and test its great advances: No-sway Torsion-Aire, push-button driving, Constant-Control power steering that works full-time. Your Dodge dealer invites you to "check out" a Swept-Wing 58 after seeing it at the show. To own it is a new adventure.

Chrysler Announces Innovations for 1958

Automatic Driver Assist, Bubble-Like
Windshield, Power Steering Mark Autos

Auto-pilot, a new push-button automatic driver assist, aircraft type bubble windshields and improved full time power steering are among innovations in the 1958 line, says E. C. Quinn, president of the Chrysler division of Chrysler corporation.

In addition to the Windsor series, Chrysler also is displaying its New Yorker and Saratoga series.

New grilles, plus side and rear styling detail refinements highlight the new cars' appearance. Interiors are new, with fabrics and leathers color keyed to a wide range of exterior colors. Improved V-8 engines give added performance and economy with new 10 to 1 compression ratios.

Sure-Traction
The new cars offer advanced sure-traction differential, captive-air tires, and dual headlights. They feature torsion-air ride as standard equipment. There is also the new Chrysler 300-D with optional fuel injection.

Grille Bar
New Yorker and Saratoga models feature narrow horizontal grille bars which stretch across the front of the car, wrapping around to front wheel openings on each side. A heavy door hardtops, 4-door hardtops, 2-door hardtop, 4-door hardtop, convertible, 2-seat town and country station wagon.

Auto-pilot allows selection of any cruising speed by means of a dial on the instrument panel. When the car has attained this pre-selected speed a warning back-pressure develops on the accelerator pedal. By pushing a button recessed in the speed selector, the driver arranges automatic throttle control. The driver can then remove his foot from the accelerator pedal. Automatic control is cancelled by a touch on the brake pedal.

Air Conditioning
A new dual air conditioning unit for extremely hot weather conditions more than doubles the flow of cold air.

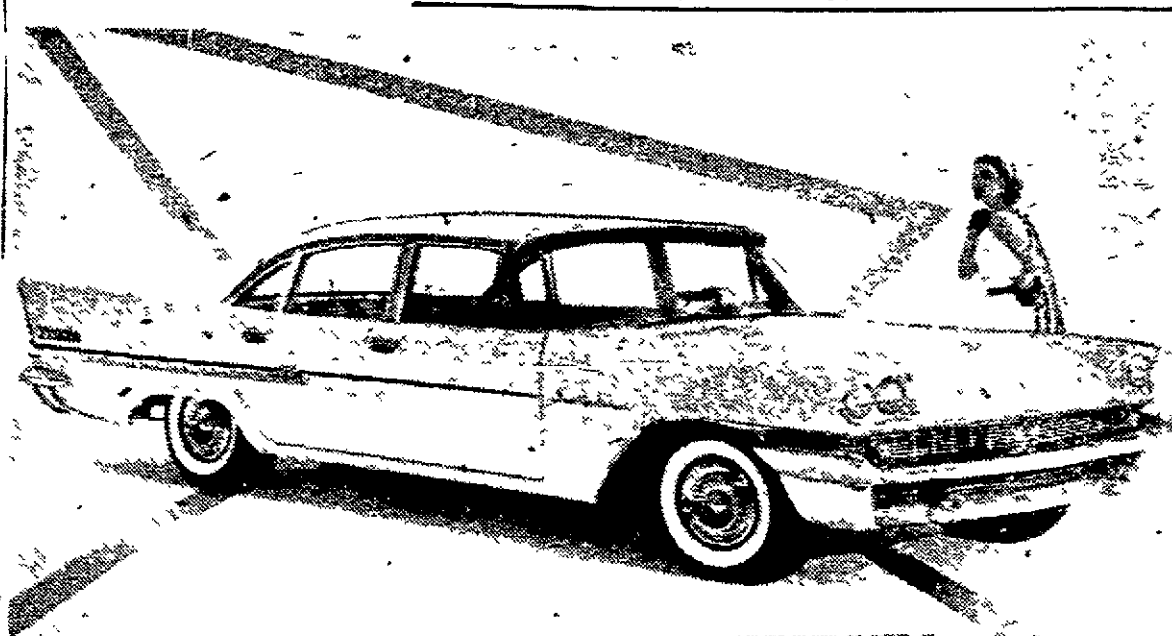

In addition to the new dual unit, an improved single-evaporator and blower unit, which circulates 15 per cent more cool air, is available.

Fourteen models in three series are offered. The Windsor is available in a 4-door sedan, 2-door hardtop, 4-door hardtop, 2-seat town and country station wagon, and 3-seat town and country station wagon.

The Saratoga is available in a 4-door sedan, 2-door hardtop and 4-door hardtop. The New Yorker is offered in a 4-door sedan, 2-door hardtop, 4-door hardtop, convertible, 2-seat town and country station wagon.

New tail light lenses are set into high-swept canted tail fins. Backup lights are positioned directly beneath tail lights.

Aircraft-type bubble windshield, power steering mark autos.

The 1958 Chrysler New Yorker sedan is powered by a 345-horsepower Fire Power V-8 engine with new 10-to-1 compression ratio. New Yorkers are also offered in a two-door hardtop, four-door hardtop, convertible, two-seated Town and Country wagon and three-seat Town and Country wagon. They are available with Auto-Pilot, a new driver assist which enables a motorist to remove his foot from the accelerator, if he wishes, in cruising.

Trucks Lead in Produce Hauling

Trucks haul 55 per cent of fruits and vegetables to leading markets; 34 per cent of fishery products, 82 per cent of live-stock, and 68 per cent of frozen foods.

Shields are standard on all 2-door hardtops, 4-door hardtops and convertibles.

New tail light lenses are set into high-swept canted tail fins. Backup lights are positioned directly beneath tail lights.

Major Accord in Offing Between Moscow and Bonn

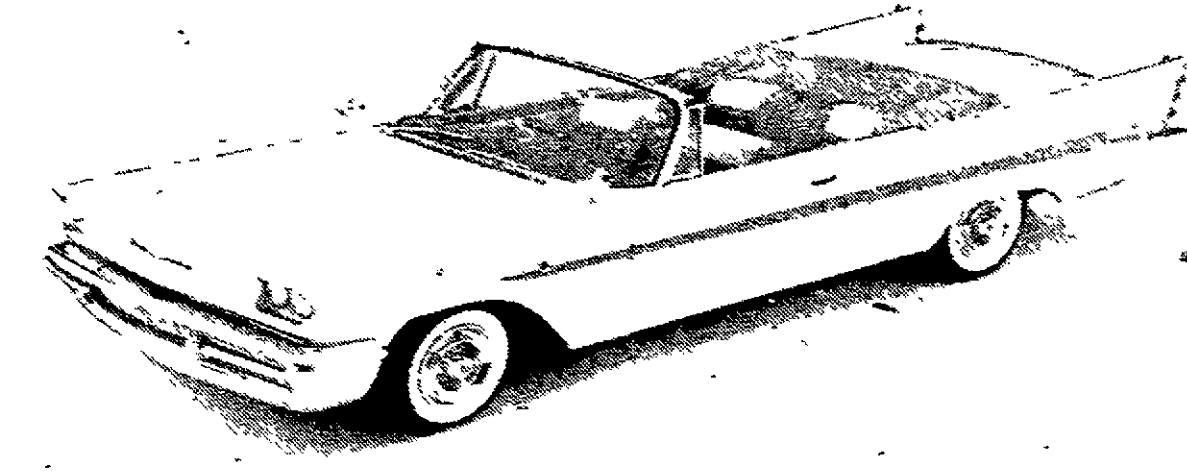

Bonn, Germany — A major Bonn-Moscow accord is in the offing for the first time since West Germany and the Soviet union began diplomatic relations.

Government sources expect high ranking Soviet officials here in the spring to sign a 3-point agreement involving persons in this category.

trade, consular rights and repatriation of Germans held in Russia.

Discussions have been going on in Moscow. The Germans and Russians have agreed on a 3-year trade agreement. The two sides also seem close to agreement on the thorny repatriation question.

Until recently, the Russians have held out against all Bonn demands for repatriation of Germans held in the Soviet Union. At the outset of the talks Bonn said there were 80,000 3-point agreement involving persons in this category.

The DeSoto Adventurer joins the DeSoto line for 1958 in two models—a 2-door hardtop and a convertible. The flared triangular color sweep on the rear quarter panel is made of anodized aluminum. In all, DeSoto introduced 13 new models in 1958, the largest number in its 29-year history.

Pace Innovations

De Soto in 1958 introduces 18 new models, the largest number in its 29-year history paced by 15 major styling and mechanical changes, and two completely new V-8 Turboflash engines.

A convertible model has been added to the Firesweep series, the lower priced prestige car introduced last year by De Soto.

For the third year, De Soto offers a convertible and a 2-door hardtop Adventurer sports car, available with fuel injection.

Engineering news about De Soto include the new "constant-control" power steering, a new economy choke fuel system, hi-temp brake fluid, sure-grip differential, and the new V-8 line of Turboflash engines.

New Rear Springs
Torston-Aire, the completely new suspension system introduced in 1957 as standard equipment on all lines, has been improved with the addition of new, longer outboard-mounted rear springs with an additional half turn.

The Firesweep and Firelite lines offer the 2-seat Shopper and the 3-seat 9-passenger Explorer station wagons. With seat folded flat into the floor they provide a full 95 cubic feet of cargo volume. Captive-air tires, pioneered in the industry by De Soto, are standard equipment on all three-seat Explorer station wagons.

Meteorite Could Cause New War, Scientist Claims

Los Angeles — A Meteorite tracker Dr. H. H. Nininger of Sedona, Ariz., says a falling meteorite might cause the extinction of the human race by setting off atomic warfare.

Dr. Nininger, head of the American Meteorite museum since its founding in 1946, offered this explanation Monday in support of his terrifying idea: "Those charged with the defense of our nation never have made meteorites the subject of study. A falling meteorite very easily may be mistaken for an intercontinental ballistic missile.

"Each spectacular fireball continues to create misunderstanding, even terror, among those witnessing it. Airplane pilots mistake fireballs for burning planes or report them as unidentified flying objects.

Man's World In New Guinea Lacks Appeal

Primitive Tribe
Lives and Works
In Mountain Area

United Nations, N.Y. — A UN health team has found a man's world, but likely of limited appeal to modern men, in western New Guinea.

This Pacific area is controlled by the Dutch but claimed by Indonesia. Its natives are among the most primitive on earth.

A campaign is under way in the territory's interior to control yaws, a contagious skin disease.

The anti-yaws work with the Kapauko tribe were chronicled by a British physician working for the world health organization, Dr. Donald R. Huggins. He reports:

The tribe, numbering about 5,000 in the area, inhabits a valley near Tigi lake at an altitude of 4,500 feet in the central highlands.

Generally Stopped
The Kapauko women are generally stooped and pot-bellied, probably from frequent child-bearing and carrying heavy loads. They wear bags lashed to the forehead and hung down the back.

These tiny women carry enormous loads in their forehead bags — all their world goods, supplies of sweet potatoes, the baby and perhaps a pig.

They bear and care for the children, grow the sweet potatoes after the men have prepared the bogs, do the fishing for the crayfish.

The men pose as warriors, carrying bows and stone-tipped arrows.

The arrangement seems to be a happy one — the women like their men to be and look like warriors.

A man can have as many

The Flared Fins of the All-New Ambassador give the car a look of motion. This is emphasized by the aluminum side spear and wheel cutouts which taper at the rear edges. All models in the new line feature dual headlights. The car shown here is a 4-door hardtop sedan.

Detroit — American Motors has introduced in its 1958 Ambassador V-8 an entirely new line of cars in the Rambler series, built on a 117-inch wheelbase, and featuring all-new exterior and interior styling.

New features in the Ambassador series include dual headlights as standard equipment, step-on all models. The individual headlamps are 5-1/2 inches in diameter. On "low beam" only the two outer headlamps are on. On "high beam," all four headlamps are lighted.

The new Ambassador grille is made of anodized aluminum extrusion, featuring a fine textured rectangular pattern. Its design is accented by an attractive grille guard that is V-shaped in the center and extends to the outer ends of the grille.

The newly-designed taillights are mounted in a low position and are faired into the fenders. Back-up lights are enclosed in a housing below the taillights. On Ambassador custom models, a silver anodized aluminum panel extends along the sides of the body, and flares smoothly along the rear fender fins. On four-door hardtop sedan/super models, the panels are standard equipment.

Bodies Redesigned, Engines Said to Be Both Economical and Efficient

Oldsmobile has restyled its 1958 model with an overall appearance change embodied in the "mobile look." The General Motors division also has introduced a true air suspension system, efficient and economical engines and an improved hydraulic drive.

Oldsmobile's styling changes include a redesigned body, new rear quarter panels, a new front end with recess-type grille and 4-beam headlamps, 1-piece rear window with greater glass area and new rear deck and roof. The decorative trim on the side panels accentuates the length, flowing lines and low silhouette.

Oldsmobile for 1958 offers three different engines in its three series of cars. The economy-priced Dynamic "8" series is powered by an engine with a new dual carburetor and is rated at 265 horsepower. The Super "88" and "98" series both have the Rocket engine and develop 305 horsepower.

Available as an optional extra on all series is the J-2 Rocket engine with three dual carburetors and generating 312-horsepower.

Oldsmobile has 16 body styles for 1958. The "98" series has four body types—two hardtops, Holiday sedan and Holiday coupe, a 4-door sedan and a convertible. There are five body styles in the Super "88" series—Holiday sedan, Holiday coupe, 4-door sedan, convertible coupe and Fiesta station wagon.

The budget-priced Dynamic "88" series offers a wide range of seven body selections—Holiday sedan, Holiday coupe, 2-door sedan, 4-door sedan, Fiesta, Fiesta sedan and convertible.

New Accessories
Two Oldsmobile accessory innovations for 1958 are available to customers—an all-transistor radio that can be completely relocated from the car's instrument panel for use elsewhere and a speedometer warning utilizing both a light and buzzer to warn when any pre-set speed is being exceeded. Both are optional at extra cost.

Oldsmobile's 1958 styling starts at the 4-beam headlamps in the front and extends to the new and larger taillights. Two headlamps are recessed and placed side-by-side in each front fender. The recess-type grille is composed of anodized aluminum louvers with an Oldsmobile emblem at the center. Rectangular parking lights are integrated in the outer ends of the front bumper.

Cold weather operation of hydraulic drive has been improved through addition of two new automatic thermostats so transmission operates just as smoothly at low temperature as at operating temperature.

A new steering wheel is recessed to the steering column and has new rectangular horn buttons located in the spokes, replacing the horn ring. The new instrument cluster is readily visible through this wheel.

Seek to Halt Smuggling in Eastern Area

Ankara, Turkey — The four eastern members of the Baghdad pact signed a convention Monday aimed at thwarting smuggling in their areas.

Representatives of Turkey, Iraq and Pakistan put their signatures on an agreement which ties their customs organizations more closely together and increases information exchanges.

Announcement of the agreement brought to a close sessions of the Baghdad alliance's economic committee in which its terms were worked out. The full council of the 5-nation alliance goes into session here next Monday with Secretary of State John Foster Dulles attending as an observer. The United States belongs to the pact's economic, antisubversion and military committees but has declined formally to join the alliance.

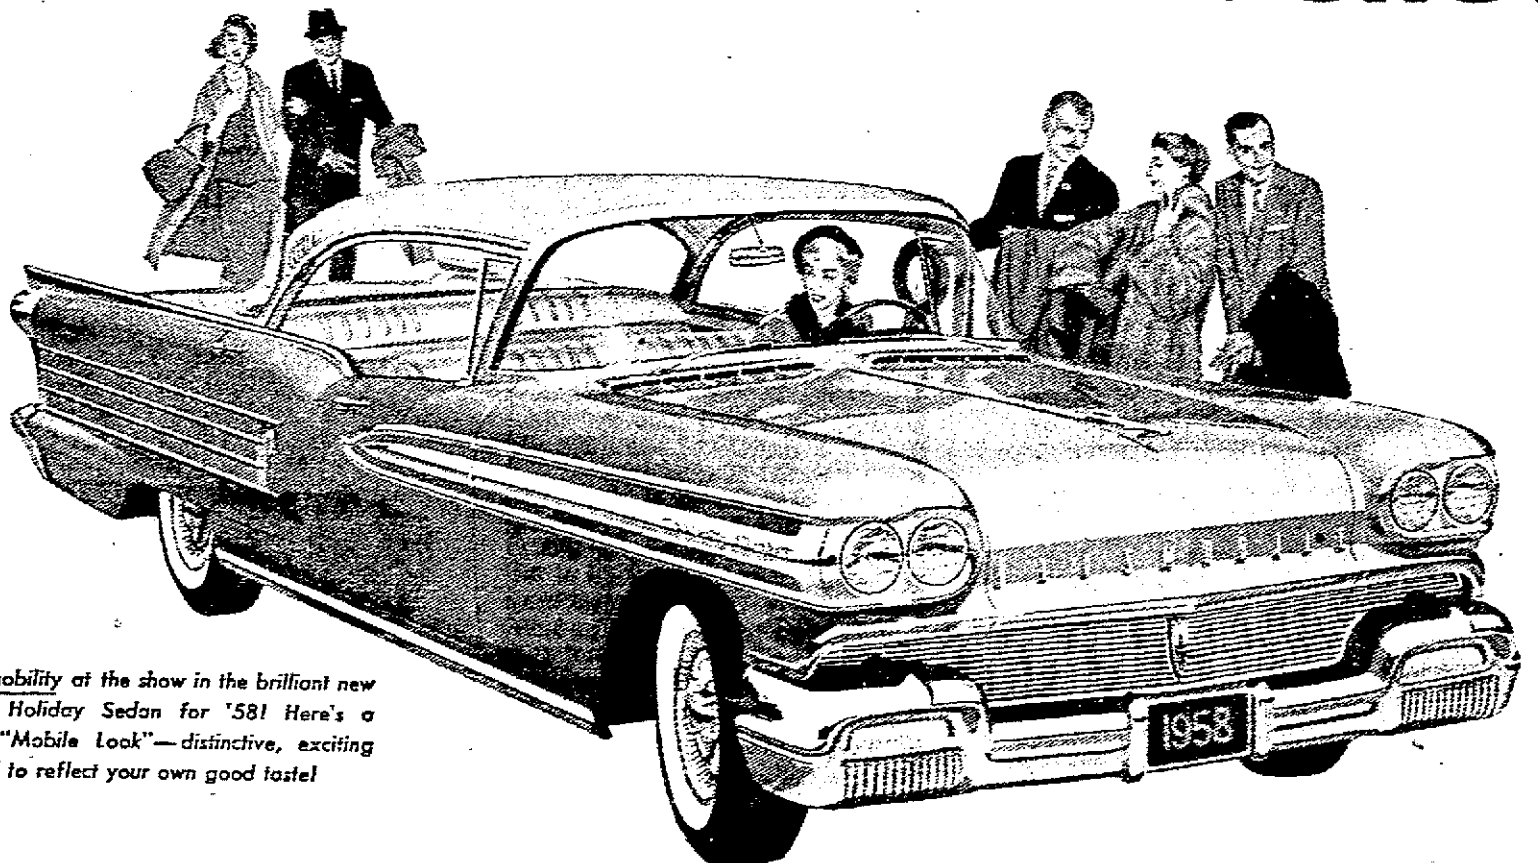

The customs convention said contraband traffic between the four states would "be combated even more efficiently by cooperation between the customs administrations."

It called upon signing members to correlate hours and functions of customs offices on common frontiers, exchange lists of goods subject to contraband and generally to increase liaison between customs administrations.

The pact's liaison committee now goes into session for two days and tomorrow the counter-subversion committee begins meetings which will last until Saturday. The military committee, with Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, U.S. army chief of staff present, meets Friday and Saturday.

Pontiac Tells Of 16 Models In '58 Series

Automobile Combines Comfort and Style,
Manufacturer Claims

A completely new body in 16 different models, including the two Bonneville dream cars, a new chassis new Tempest 395 V-8 engine and new developments in optional equipment, mark what Pontiac Motor division calls "the boldest advance in 50 years."

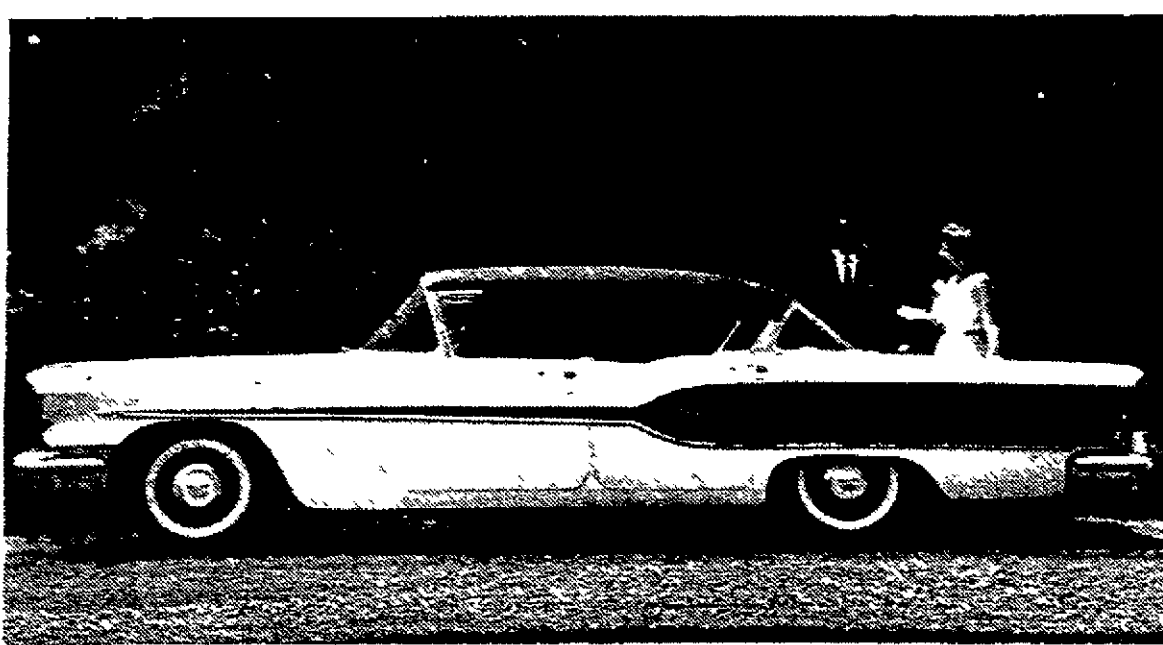

The 1958 Pontiacs are lower, longer, wider and combine high performance and comfort with high style and luxurious interiors to provide a quality approaching universal sales appeal.

In addition to the Bonneville convertible and sport coupe, Pontiac's contribution in family sports-type cars, other new innovations are offered for 1958. Among them are a convertible in the lowest priced Chieftain line, air ride suspensions on an option or all models, along with improved fuel injection, introduced by Pontiac last year.

The new tubular center X-frame chassis has helped make possible lowering overall height of these cars to a new low, while providing more than adequate head and leg room.

The new Tempest 395 V-8 engine is bigger than ever, with displacement increased from 347 to 370 cubic inches, and designed to deliver power where most needed—in the traffic range.

New Direction styling accentuates the car's longer, lower, wider look. The low, horizontal grille is topped by dual twin head lamps and rises above the heavy bumper which incorporates massive parking and signal lamps. A new gold, rectangular crest featuring a "V" on a grooved background above the name Pontiac, in block-style lettering is positioned in the left side of the grille. Delta wing ornaments ride atop each front fender with twin windshields continuing along the fender.

Big Car at an Economy Price sums up the 1958 Pontiac Super Chief 4-door Catalina built on the longer 124-inch wheelbase. Available in a wide range of exterior and interior colors, the Super Chief comes in 2 and 4-door Catalinas and a slim pillar 4-door sedan that approaches hardtop styling. Synchronesh transmission and 2-barrel carburetion are standard with this series, although it carries a full selection of optional equipment that will add to the pleasure of driving Pontiacs.

Easily Recognized
From the rear the 1958 Pontiacs will be immediately recognizable by dual twin tail lamps above oval chromed backup lamp ports, and the simply styled trunk lid bears chrome handles on each side of the nameplate.

Leading a parade of optional equipment for the new cars is air ride suspension, new for passenger cars in the middle price range, which gives a level ride regardless of load or road conditions. Pontiac's fuel injection, introduced last year, has been improved and tailored for the new, bigger engine.

Transmission, power brakes, power steering, power-operated windows, 4-way power seat with a new control device, which returns it to a pre-selected setting, are other extras, as is a new "safeguard" speedometer, which eliminates rear wheel slip; a new split front seat back lock to prevent seat tilt on sudden stops; a new door lock warning lamp, and a new combination car and portable transistorized radio.

Anti-Freeze Buying Trend Noted in Survey

Over-the-Counter
Sales Threatens Position of Garages

Wilmington, Del. — A shift in buying habits threatens the traditional position of service stations, repair garages, and car dealers as the major outlet for anti-freezes.

This trend is disclosed by nine years of continuing market surveys, made annually since 1949 by Alfred A. Politz Research, Inc., for a manufacturer of anti-freezes.

About 25 per cent of all anti-freeze—nearly 25 million gallons—this study shows, is sold "over-the-counter" in discount houses, supermarkets, drug and automotive accessory stores, and farmers' auctions. This compares with 5 per cent sold over-the-counter in 1949. Seventy-five per cent of all anti-freeze sales, however, are still made through the traditional outlets.

This continuing source of accurate anti-freeze marketing data has helped in developing sound marketing plans, and effective advertising and promotion programs, which stress the importance of the service station in properly winterizing the family car.

Reasons Cited
The most important reason car owners purchase anti-freeze in traditional servicing outlets, the study discloses, is "convenience." Others who prefer to buy anti-freeze at over-the-counter outlets, give a "cheaper price" as the main reason. But 59 per cent of this latter group also said they would buy anti-freeze from traditional outlets if they could get it at a cash and carry price.

Although 61 per cent of all anti-freeze installations are still done by servicing dealers, the study disclosed a significant increase in "do-it-yourself" servicing. Thirty-nine per cent of all installations are done by car owners themselves.

Stressing the need for consumer education on the dangers of re-using anti-freeze, the study reported that 35 per cent of all car owners re-use anti-freeze more than one season. The majority of this group adds some fresh anti-freeze in subsequent years. Estimated annual sales:

Gross National Product Tabbed at $434 Billion

Washington — P — At $434 billion, the total output of goods and services last year was nearly eight times that of 1933, low point of the great depression—when measured by prices that prevailed in each of those years.

But if the 1933 gross national product is computed at 1957 prices, last year's output was only about three times as great.

In comparison with prosperous 1929, last year's GNP was four times as great in prevailing prices, but only twice as big in terms of 1937 dollars.

New Type Spare Tire Developed

Can't Go Flat, Takes Only Fraction Of Normal Space

Akron, Ohio — A "spare tire" that can't go flat and which takes less than one-third the trunk space of a fifth tire has been developed by The Firestone Tire and Rubber company.

The tire, called Perma Spare, is lightweight, easy to handle and install and can carry a motorist 100 miles for permanent repairs to a punctured tire.

Perma Spare is a thin steel disk with a smooth, 2-inch solid rubber "tread."

It can be installed simply by jacking the damaged tire off the pavement, removing the hub cap, and attaching the spare, with the wheel bolts, to the outside of the damaged tire.

Being Tested

Perma Spare is being tested by major automobile manufacturers, W. E. Lyon, director of tire engineering and development at Firestone, said the simplicity of the Perma Spare, together with its space-saving qualities, are of particular interest to automobile firms.

"Perma Spare could fit easily into a recess in the trunk to the re-use problems, floor of any automobile," he according to the study. Forty-three per cent of all servicing dealers still incorrectly think—Spare in a trunk floor recess would eliminate the uprights.

"Installation of the Perma Spare in a trunk floor recess would eliminate the uprights cantire from the trunk space and safely be used more than one permit greater freedom of design for automotive engineers," Lyon said.

Perma Spare weighs about 30 pounds, is one and one-quarter inches thick, and is slightly larger in diameter than a regular motorist's exposure to passing traffic tire.

Mr. Lyon said that Perma Spare is reduced considerably

Spare is designed to be used repeatedly, if necessary, and could be transferred from one car to another.

According to Lyon, Perma Spare is the best device developed to date to eliminate the spare time from station wagons and other vehicles which have limited storage space for spares and in which space is at a premium for passengers and cargo.

It will last longer, look better, and run more economically if you start bringing it in to Al Laflin's for all your service needs.

Continental Style Seen In Lincolns

Six Luxury Models
Offered in Capri,
Premier Series

The Lincoln Premiere and Lincoln Capri for 1958, inspired by the styling of the Continental, offer a total of six models. In each line there is a 4-door sedan, a 4-door hardtop and a 2-door hardtop coupe.

Stylists enhanced the low, and long graceful lines of each Lincoln by complementing each model with the Continental roof line, canted dual headlamps, an extended long, low hood and a wide, sweeping rear deck lid.

Between the canted dual headlamps is a horizontally-louvered grille with a massive flared bumper across the front. A Lincoln script on the left side of the grille gives the car distinctive identification.

The Lincoln suggests the classic simplicity of the Continental profile. Along the side is a single strip of chrome which extends from the rear bumper to the middle of the front door. On Premiere models, the end of this molding is highlighted by an eight pointed star.

The styling theme at the rear matches the front with an oval-shaped horizontally-louvered grille treatment. On either side are integrated tail lights and backup lights set into the grille. The bumper matches the chrome treatment on the lower portion of the rear deck lid which outlines and protects the oval-shaped grille.

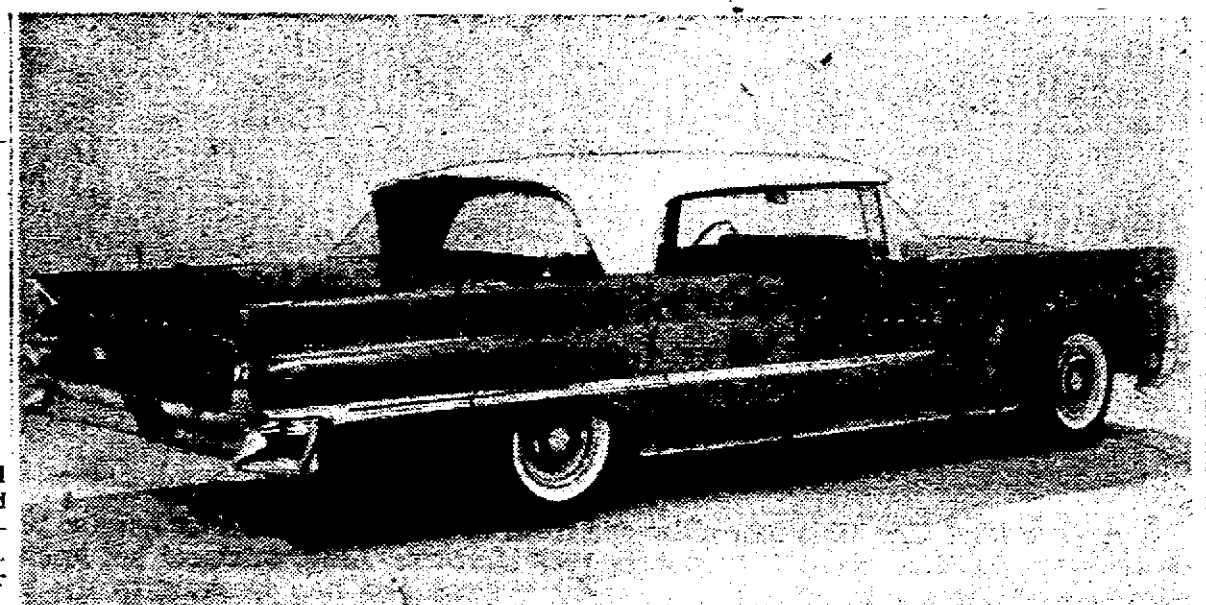

Besides the styling inspiration of the Continental, the Lincoln power train will provide the same kind of performance as the Continental.

A new engine is rated at 375 horsepower at 4,800 rpm. Torque is rated at 490 pounds at 3,100 rpm. Displacement is 430 cubic inches. Improved performance results in part from a compression ratio of 10.5 to 1. Cylindrical, wedge-shaped combustion chambers with larger valve heads and opening areas provide a more efficient power stroke and air-fuel mixture which increases performance and fuel economy.

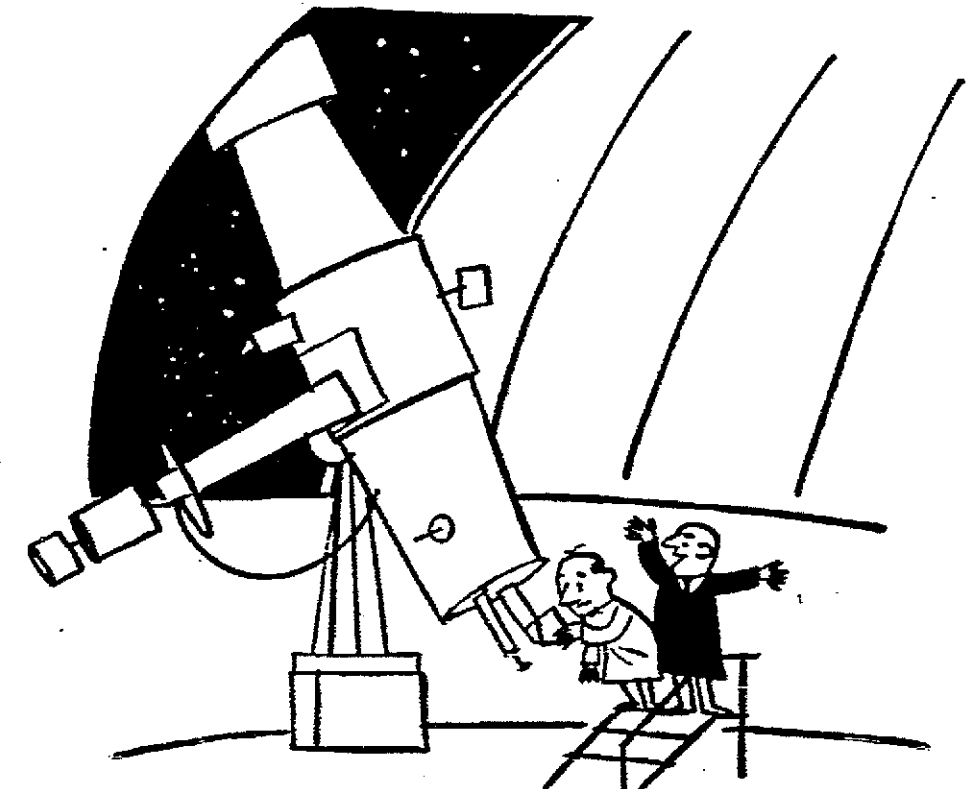

Trailing Arm
A new trailing arm rear suspension provides better handling, a better ride and minimizes rear end dip on acceleration and rise on braking.

All Lincolns have 14-inch wheels. A luxurious interior with ample driving comforts has been designed and styled to satisfy the tastes of the most discriminating fine car buyer. Such standard items as power steering, automatic transmission, power brakes, five ash trays with lighters, foam rubber seat cushions, warning lights for braking, oil pressure and low fuel supply increase the ease of driving of the 1958 Lincoln.

Standard safety features include: safety door latches, deep-dish steering wheel, padded instrument panel, padded sun visors, dual windshield washers and directional signals.

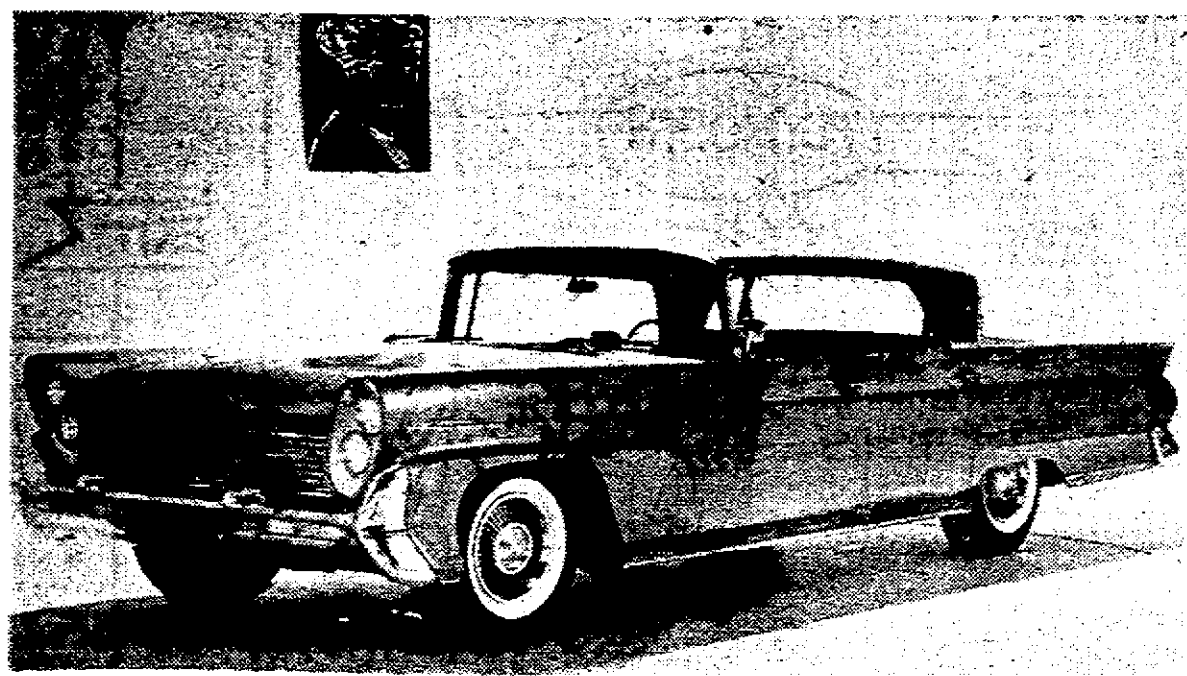

Entirely New in Every detail of design, engineering and luxury, the 1958 Lincoln Capri introduces classic, sculptured lines, a long, low hood topped by a horizontal grille and canted dual headlamps. A 4-door sedan, a 4-door hardtop and a 2-door hardtop coupe comprise the Capri series, each powered by a high compression engine rated at 375 horsepower at 4800 rpm. Five inches longer than last year's models, the new Lincolns introduce all-new integrated body and frame construction which Lincoln will pioneer in the higher price field.

A Symbol of Classic Design, the new Continental Mark III models open a new era in the luxury car field. For the first time since the introduction of this prestige car, Continental in 1958 offers a full line of models including a 4-door hardtop sedan, a unique retractable top convertible, a regular sedan and a 2-door hardtop coupe, all in the traditional and elegant design of past Continentals. A new, high compression engine rated at 375-horsepower at 4800 rpm powers the new Continental which pioneers an all-new integrated body and frame construction in the fine car field.

Offer 4 Models

'58 Continental Symbol Of Classic Auto Design

An American automobile symbol of classic design, the Continental, opens a new era in the luxury car field in 1958 with an expanded line of four models.

For the first time in history, Continental offers a 4-door sedan, a 4-door hardtop, a unique soft top convertible as well as the well-known 2-door hardtop. All models advance the traditional and elegant design of the Continental Mark II.

In the same classic mold as its predecessors, the Continental Mark III has clean sweeping lines, the same unmistakable roof line, the latticed-type grille, the long, low hood, the distinctive wheel covers and identification nameplates in classic script reveal the preeminence of the Continental.

The soft top convertible is the first in the industry with a reverse slanting all-glass rear window, which opens and closes by a power operated switch located on the driver's armrest. The soft top is completely automatic and folds down behind the rear seat.

More quality and quietness is built into the Continental by left side of the grille. A single unit type of construction which is accomplished by welding the body and frame into one unit.

Continental Mark III styling emphasizes length and lowness with discrete chrome treatment. Overall length is 229 inches, while overall height is 56.5 inches. Interior dimensions are increased due to the new type of construction which allows the individual to step down into the car.

Canted dual headlamps provide distinctive front end styling. This flared concept is extended along the silhouette of the car where it matches the slightly flared effect of the rear quarter panels. A sculptured front quarter panel accentuates the distinction of the vehicle's silhouette, while a smaller sculptured panel covers the rear wheel.

Set between the canted headlamps is a latticed-type grille fronted by highly protective bumpers that wrap around slightly at either side. A gold-anodized Continental nameplate in script is placed on the left side of the grille. A reverse slanting rear window which is accomplished by welding the body and frame into one unit.

Also, neatly concealed in the rear grille is the center gas filler opening. Setting off the oval design is a chrome molding across the lower edge of the rear deck lid matching the rear bumper. It provides a circular effect to the entire oval-shaped rear end which is flared outwards to complement the front styling themes of the Continental.

For better vision, the driver looks out through a huge compound windshield with the upper part of the glass curvature extending into the roof. Clustered in front of the driver are simply defined controls, masterfully set in an aircraft type instrument panel for easy visibility and accessibility. To the right of a sweeping semi-circular speedometer are warn-dow is power operated by the driver who has control of all windows in the car by virtue of a master control switch. Power windows are standard equipment in the Continental. In addition, the driver can lock out the power windows, precluding tampering by small children. The latter is an optional accessory.

The long, down-swept rear deck lid flows into a wide oval-shaped grille with a latticed-type design matching the front grille. Set into the center of the rear bumper area are six lights including tail lights, stoplights, turn signals and back-up lights.

Concealed Gas Filler
Also, neatly concealed in the rear grille is the center gas filler opening. Setting off the oval design is a chrome molding across the lower edge of the rear deck lid matching the rear bumper. It provides a circular effect to the entire oval-shaped rear end which is flared outwards to complement the front styling themes of the Continental.

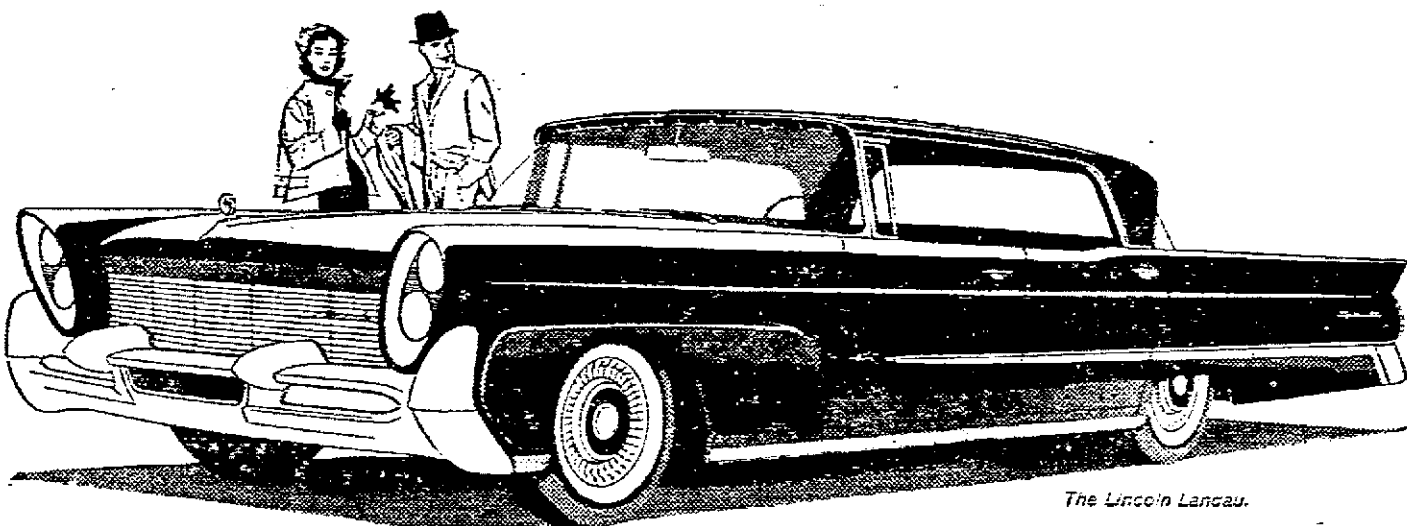

For better vision, the driver looks out through a huge compound windshield with the upper part of the glass curvature extending into the roof. Clustered in front of the driver are simply defined controls, masterfully set in an aircraft type instrument panel for easy visibility and accessibility. To the right of a sweeping semi-circular speedometer are warning lights for fuel, oil, door locks and lubrication control light. On the left side of the instrument panel is a single dial which provides ventilation, heating or defrosting merely by turning the dial to its proper setting.

The Continental Mark III has a new engine with a compression ratio of 10.5 to 1 and a horsepower rating of 375 at 4800 rpm. Torque is rated at 490 foot pounds at 3100 rpm. Standard safety features include: safety door latches, deep-dish steering wheel, padded instrument panel, padded sun visors, dual windshield washers and directional signals.

'58 Mercury Features Big Style Change

New Series Added
In Upper Medium
Price Bracket

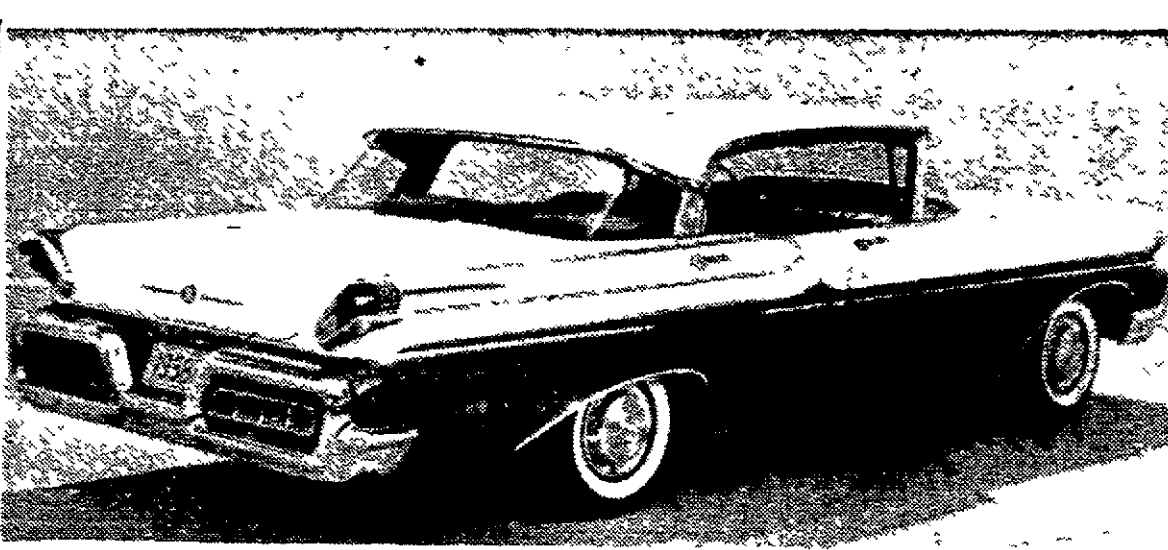

Major engineering and styling changes and a big new series in the upper medium price range feature the Mercury for 1958.

"Mercury will be able to offer a big superior car with matching performance throughout the entire medium price field," said James J. Nance, vice president of Ford Motor company and general manager of the Lincoln and Mercury division.

"This new series called the Park Lane, is the biggest and most luxurious Mercury ever built," Nance said. "It has a wheelbase of 125 inches and it is 220 1/2 inches long—seven inches longer than the Montclair and Monterey series Mercurys."

The 1958 line of Mercurys totals 20 models, including the only full line of hardtop styled station wagons in both 2-door and 4-door models in the medium price field. All but the Park Lane are on 122-inch wheelbase. The Park Lane has three models, phaeton sedan, phaeton coupe and convertible.

An entirely new series of four 1958 Mercury is new and featured. Mercury Marauder V-8 engines turn a longer, lower hood Matic Multi-Drive automatic offers matchless performance which carries a graceful step up throughout the driving range, to the cowl. New sculptured fenders

A Crisp Roof Line. Thin rear pillar and fresh new styling of the rear quarter panel emphasize the clean, classic beauty of the 1958 Mercury. Long, outrigger tail lights of cylindrical shape with bright-finish concentric rings give new meaning to the body side projectile. Newly-developed Mercury Marauder engines with 383 and 430-cubic-inch displacement and horsepower ranging from 312 to 400 are teamed with new automatic transmissions. Pictured is the Mercury Montclair Phaeton sedan.

Horsepower ranges from 312 to der lines blend with a heavier 400. These new engines feature bumper-grille and incorporate such unique engineering developments as 3-stage cooling systems, standard equipment. Long, deep-channeled side projectiles with unique tubular chrome outrigger tail lights and a restyled thin roof line with narrower quarter posts and instead of steel. This suspension improves the ride considerably by greatly reducing pitch and driving disturbance. It maintains the height of the car at a constant level regardless of the number of passengers.

Major Change In a major styling change, all front end sheet metal in the new 1958 Mercury is new and featured. Mercury Marauder V-8 engines turn a longer, lower hood Matic Multi-Drive automatic offers matchless performance which carries a graceful step up throughout the driving range, to the cowl. New sculptured fenders

Four Transmissions Four transmissions are offered, including a new Merc-O-Matic Multi-Drive automatic transmission which gives unmatched flexibility in meeting individual driving requirements or habits. Multi-Drive has three forward ranges, cruising range which meets normal driving needs, a "high performance" range for fast acceleration and hill control or low range for maximum engine braking on extremely steep grades or for extra pulling power. A hill-holder operates in cruising range, preventing the car from slipping back when stopping on steep grades. Multi-Drive is standard on the Park Lane models and optional on all others.

An improved Merc-O-Matic automatic has been designed for adaptation to the increased torque capacity of the Mercury Marauder engines. It includes a stronger, welded steel converter which replaces the bolted converter used previously. Merc-O-Matic is standard on Montclair models and on Voyager and Colony Park station wagons. Keyboard control for automatic transmissions is simplified in design.

Pusey Calls For Education In Humanities

Can't Go Overboard For Science, Harvard President Contends

President Nathan M. Pusey of Harvard university, former Lawrence college president, calls for "steady, mature concern for the whole of education" rather than "a frenetic, concentrated effort" to produce large numbers of scientists and engineers.

"As a nation we need to be strong in basic and applied science," he told the Harvard board of overseers in his annual report.

"But at the same time we must continue to address ourselves with equal diligence to the social sciences and to the humanities, for these disciplines are no less important than the natural sciences to national security and welfare.

"The threats to our society from mental ills, broken homes, crime-ridden cities, imperfect governments and the even less perfect relationships among governments, are as pressing as any.

"And the humanities, which give quality to life and also to most of us our deepest understanding, must continue to be cultivated if we are to build and maintain a culture worth preserving, and produce people equipped in heart and mind to carry such large responsibility."

Six Chosen To Take Part In AHS Recital

Six Appleton High school students have been chosen for the annual extemporaneous speaking recital Feb. 13. Speakers will be Linda DeNoyer, Joe Foley, John Kellogg, Dwayne Norris, Mary Quella and John Scribner.

The recital has been dedicated to Ted Bolton and Carleton Roth, graduates of AHS who were drowned in Lake Winnebago in 1929, shortly after their high school graduation. Both had been active in forensic work in high school.

Students who take part in the recital must be prepared on many subjects relating to current events. Problems for discussion will be based on domestic affairs, foreign affairs, and economic problems.

Miss Elizabeth Plowright, teacher in the social studies department, is working with students. Each student must be prepared on as many topics as possible since in the final recital he will speak on a subject which he picks an hour preceding the recital.

Lutheran High Teacher Will Attend Parley

Gerald Mallmann, a science instructor at Fox Valley Lutheran High school, will participate in the National Science Teachers convention March 26 through 29 in Denver, Colo.

He will discuss the role of science in a small high school during one of the sessions.

Hamburger Now Popular In England

BY EDDY GILMORE

London — (AP) — Four years ago this week the American hamburger was introduced on a large scale — with onions — to Britain.

By today it's found a firm stomach hold on the digestive systems of the citizens of this island.

J. Lyons, a large chain, has dedicated entire restaurants to the hamburger. It sells them under a trade name by arrangement with an American firm.

A Lyons executive first saw hamburgers in Chicago, tasted them and speculated whether a nation accustomed to tea and crumpet's would ever accept something so foreign.

Popular Quickly

Cautiously, the London company set up a hamburger counter in the corner of a milk bar at Olympia, one of London's big exhibition halls, in January, 1954. In a week it was selling 3,000 a day.

Still apprehensive, the caterers experimented with them at an eatery near Oxford circus in the center of a London shopping center. Again they were a success.

In 1955 Britain's first hamburger palace was opened near Piccadilly circus.

More emporiums for the burger have been built and it has become a staple item in the diet of a lot of Londoners. It's sold also in Reading, Northampton and the university cities of Oxford and Cambridge.

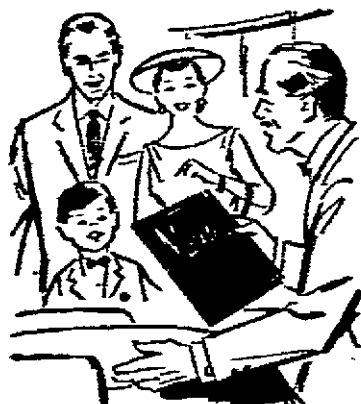

"The chaps find them cheap and cheerful," said a Lyons spokesman.
